Republicans Make Nominations for School Directors.

H. C. Grawe, Wm. Landvogt, Isaac Mason and Chas. Hequembourg.

THOSE WERE THE SELECTIONS FOR DELEGATES-AT-LARGE.

Nominations in the Districts—Dr. Pretorius Made Chairman of the Convention—His Address—The Platform—A. P. A. Talk—The Nominations and Ballots.

DIRECTORS AT LARGE.

H. C. Grawe.
Charles Hequembourg.
Isaac Mason.
William Landvogt.

DISTRICT DIRECTORS.

Sixth District, Nicholas Berg.
Fourth District, Henry Bus.
Fifth District, no nomination.
Eighth District, John Kessner.
Tenth District, John H. Dieckmann.
Thirteenth District, Elmer E. Lacy.

The Republican Convention at Central Turner Hall this morning for the purpose of selecting four School Directors-at-large, and eight district directors was composed of 112 delegates selected by mass-meetings in the different wards last night. The assemblage present when Temporary Chairman Kalbfeld rapped for order was not of a kind calculated to inspire confidence that what the chairman outlined as the work of the convention would be carried out. Mr. Kalbfeld hoped that the delegates would select good men who would faithfully represent the wishes of the people. Among the representative delegates present who were to carry out the wishes of the people were such well-known Republican ward strikers as Chris Schawacker, H. T. Rohlfing, Andy Brown, John Henry Pohlman, Nick Karr, George Grassmuck and many others. It was essentially a political convention and the reform citizen was not conspicuous throughout the day.

Previous to the assembling of the convention quite an amount of talk was indulged in between Republicans over the defeat of various acknowledged A. P. A. candidates at the primaries. One of the bitterest fights was in the Twenty-eighth Ward, where an A. P. A. delegation was defeated by one vote and Delegates John Gernez and George Wienkemier elected. The A. P. A. delegation was beaten in the Sixteenth Ward and was also beaten in the Eighth Ward. In the Twenty-fifth Ward the A. P. A. claim they won out, and Pat Clark stated that Dan Jelly and Daily Reed, who represented the ward, are in reality Democrats. Before the convention was called to order John H. Spinning and William H. McClain, two of the members of the present Teachers Committee of the School Board, and both prominent Democrats, entered the convention hall and held a conversation with C. H. F. Rohlfing about the chances of D. R. Wolfe. Both Democrats refused to state what their business was with the Secretary of the Republican City Central Committee, and the Deputy Coroner stated that they had asked him about a private matter upon which he was unable to give them a satisfactory answer. The outcome of all the A. P. A. talk was the formulation of the following resolution:

ANTI-A. P. A. RESOLUTION.

Whereas, It has been stated in the public print and in other ways that a secret political body known as the A. P. A. has in the past been responsible for nominations on the Republican ticket of men who hold views contrary to that of religious liberty guaranteed to all by the Constitution of the United States.

Therefore, Be it resolved that this convention denounce these statements as false and state that it is not in sympathy with the A. P. A. or its principles.

The resolution, however, was not presented. In the Committee on Resolutions Charles Claudius of the Fifth Ward, who was intrusted with its introduction, after a consultation with John Gernez and others, decided not to introduce it, believing that it would cause trouble on the floor if the matter was brought up.

It was 10:45 o'clock when Chairman Kalbfeld rapped for order. Charles Turner and Gus Bierman were appointed temporary sergeants-at-arms to get the delegates seated. Mr. Kalbfeld told the delegates they were present for no individual interests, but for the good of the public schools. Secretary Rohlfing then read the call. Chairman Kalbfeld then went on to explain how the party had been drawn into making a political issue of a School Board election. He said the action of the Democratic Central Committee was responsible.

PREETORIUS TEMPORARY CHAIRMAN.

Dr. Emil Preetorius of the Westliche Post was introduced as temporary chairman and said: "I feel always proud to be called upon to lead a Republican army to victory. Our party, when I joined it nearly forty years ago, was then called the party of ideas and the party of ideas it is today, and ideas must conquer.

"In the heart of the American people today is the great public school system, of which our party has always been the champion. Now putting up good men and true men representing our principles means election. They can count on the votes not only of Republicans, but of every free-thinking, fairminded, progressive citizen, no matter what his party or religion."

The convention then selected the following committees:

After selecting the committees a motion for one half hour recess was passed.

At 11:45 the convention again got down to business, the Credentials Committee reporting all the delegates entitled to seats. The report was adopted. Matters were delayed for some time at this point as the Committee on Resolutions were in the throes of a discussion over a resolution on the married teacher problem. Chairman Pretorius sent the Sergeant-at-Arms to the committee room, and when the door was opened sounds of loud talking, and all the evidences of an animated discussion came forth. Promptly at noon the committee announced its readiness to report. The temporary organization was made permanent. Secretary Rohlfing read the report for Chairman Cole. It was as follows:

THE PLATFORM.

Whereas the calling of a Republican Convention for the purpose of nominating our directors-at-large for the School Board election to take place on Nov. 7 next has been forced upon the party and this committee by the partisan action of the Democratic party and its committee, in face of its oft repeated declarations of keeping politics out of the School Board and school elections. Therefore be it

Resolved, That we accept the forced conditions with the full responsibility of the importance attached thereto, and of the necessity for the nomination of clean and desirable men for candidates, and those who will have first the interests of the schools at heart and as well the administering faithfully the vast property and trust at stake solely in the interests of the public and against the manipulation of greedy mercenary contractors and trusts, local and foreign, and for the full and complete accommodation for all children of schoolable age which latter is now so unfortunately lacking, as well as decent and comfortable space and sanitary conditions.

That we deprecate this unfortunate and unnecessary condition of affairs with which the public is so unfortunately familiar and impressed with and demanding a change, and we solicit the co-operation of all good citizens to this end.

The report was adopted, but Secretary Rohlfing said the committee had overlooked the fact that three directors-at-large were to be elected for a term of four years, and one to fill the unexpired term of Gist Blair. Chairman Pretorius disposed of the matter by suggesting that the three receiving the highest number of votes be for the long term. There was some discussion, but when Mr. Pretorious put the motion he asked only for the "ayes" and then declared his proposition unanimously adopted.

NOMINATIONS CALLED FOR.

Nominations were then called for. The First Ward yielded to Nathan Cole, who put in nomination Henry C. Grawe. The nomination met with applause from only half the delegates. Andy Brown, from the Second Ward, said he would follow in the footsteps of his honored friend, Mr. Cole, and nominate a man who was a fit companion to Mr. Grawe. He named Dr. G. J. Hermann.

L. J. Wall of the August Gast Lithographing Co. rose when the Third Ward was called and placed in nomination Mr. Charles W. Hequembourg. The name was the first to elicit general applause.

John M. Gernez by the courtesy of the Fifth Ward next arose. He spoke of bringing into play the eternal principles of the Republican party even in a school election. He nominated Capt. Isaac M. Mason.

Chas. Wagner from the Sixth Ward nominated William Landvogt, the North St. Louis undertaker.

When the Ninth Ward was called Hermann Stamme arose and began an enthusiastic speech in favor of the man who was nominated by Mr. Nathan Cole. He did not know who the man was and had not overheard his name, but he and the Ninth Ward delegates were in favor of the man nominated by Nathan Cole.

Mr. F. F. Berryhill from the Twentieth Ward named Mr. A. F. Hoffer. The speaker described him as the man who had passed through Congress a charter for the construction of the Chain of Rocks.

Mr. E. C. Rowse of the Twenty-first Ward named Mr. Wm. E. Fisse.

Emil Becker from the Twenty-second Ward, nominated Mr. William Von Froben.

The Twenty-third Ward presented Mr. Henry Fairbank.

J. W. Overbeck, from the Twenty-seventh Ward, nominated Mr. D. R. Wolfe.

The result of the ballot was as follows:

FOR DIRECTORS-AT-LARGE.

Herman Grawe	103
Chas. Hequembourg	103
Isaac Mason	58
Wm. Landvogt	57
Lewis Von Froben	35
Dr. Wolfe	34
A. F. Hopper	25
Hy Fairback	20
Dr. G. J. Hermann	16
Wm E. Fisse	7

Messrs. Herman Grawe, Chas. Hequembourg, Isaac Mason and Wm. Landvogt were therefore declared the nominees-at-large of the convention.

After the announcement of the result the convention immediately adjourned.

DISTRICT NOMINEES.

Delegates from the various districts met after adjournment and selected candidates for the districts in which there were vacancies.

The Sixth District, comprising the Ninth and Twenty-third Wards, nominated Nicholas Berg, ex-City Register.

The Fifth District delegation from the Tenth and Fourteenth Wards announced that they would support the independent Democratic nominee.

The Tenth District composed of the Sixteenth and Twenty-Fourth Wards nominated John H. Dieckmann, of the firm of Wernse & Dieckmann.

The Thirteenth District, composed of the Twenty-Fifth and Twenty-Seventh Wards agreed to support the candidacy of Elmer E. Lacy.

The nominee of the Eighth District, comprising the Eighth and Eighteenth Wards, is John Kissner. Mr. Kissner is a member of the firm of Foskett & Kissner, feed dealers, 4245 North Broadway.

In the Fourth District, composing Wards Six and Twelve, Henry Bus will be renominated, as there is no opposition. The other districts will settle upon their nominees before Sunday.

Fight in the Second.

Quite a lively fight occurred last night at the mass-meeting in the Second Ward, held at Lightstone's Hall. The meeting was called to order before 8 o'clock by one faction and broken up by another. Knives and revolvers were drawn and several persons were roughly used. The final wind-up was the sending of Bernard Belter, Andy Brown, Max Frube and John Human to the convention as delegates.

Precinct Organization.

A large number of the prominent Democracts of Precinct 143—Twenty-fifth Ward, assembled at Lang's Hall, 4132 Easton avenue, Tuesday evening, the object of meeting being to establish a permanent precinct organization and to organize the Democrats of that precinct. The following persons were elected as permanent officers of the organization: Will Hunter, President; Joe Mullally, Vice President; Joe J. Welsh, Secretary; and P. J. Bain, Treasurer. The association will meet next Tuesday night and all Democrats in the precinct and ward are cordially invited to attend.

An Independent to Run.

Elmer E. Lacey filed a petition yesterday, signed by fifty citizens, requesting him to run as an independent candidate for the School Board in the Thirteenth District, including the Twenty-first and Twenty-seventh Wards. This is the first nomination by electors filed.

Thirteenth Ward Democratic.

Joseph Murphy, the Democratic Central Committeeman of the Thirteenth Ward (Carondelet), has called a mass meeting for tomorrow evening at St. Boniface Hall to select delegates to the Democratic convention to be held here Saturday, Oct. 21.

GRAVES ALIVE?

The Startling Story Published in Denver To-Day.

Claim Made That the Noted Poisoner Did Not Die in His Cell.

THE COFFIN SUPPOSED TO COVER HIS BODY CONTAINED A PINE LOG.

Statement Said to Have Been Made by Two Gentlemen Now in Denver Who Witnessed the Burial of the Doctor's Alleged Remains in Connecticut—No Critical Investigation Made at the Time Graves' Death Was Announced.

DENVER, Colo., Oct. 19.—A leading newspaper in this city to-day publishes a startling article regarding the alleged suicide of Dr. T. Thatcher Graves, whose trial and conviction of the killing of Mrs. Josephine A. Barnaby of Providence, R. I., by means of poisoned whisky, has been so widely read.

This paper claims that Dr. Graves is not dead. The suicide of the famous poisoner in the jail of this city was announced on the morning of Sept. 16 last. But the story printed here today states that Charles N. Chandler, a wealthy citizen of Thompson Center, Conn., arrived in Denver Tuesday, in company with Stephen Morse of the same town, which is Dr. Graves' old home and where the body is supposed to have been buried. These gentlemen are quoted as stating positively that Dr. Graves is not dead, that the casket was opened at the grave in Thompson Center, Conn., where the body was shipped for burial, against the protest of Mrs. Graves, and found to contain a pine log instead of a dead body and these gentlemen are given as authority for the statement that the supposed dead doctor is now enjoying his liberty in a foreign country.

A rumor has been current here for some time past that the body carried from the cell in the County Jail on that Sunday morning was wax and not the flesh of the alleged famous poisoner, and that this trick had been played in order to give the prisoner his liberty and deceive the public, and that the parties to the deception were some high officials of a secret organization.

This rumor was strengthened by the fact that no one was allowed to view the remains except the most intimate friends of the Graves family, and also that Mrs. Graves refused to allow the body to be embalmed before shipping it to Massachusetts, but today is the first time the report has appeared in print.

On the morning that Dr. Graves' body was found in his cell, he was supposed to have committed suicide. Among the many papers found in his cell was the following letter:

To the Coroner of Denver, Colo.:

DEAR SIR.—Please do not hold an autopsy on my remains. The cause of death may be rendered as follows: "Died from persecution. Worn out. Exhausted." Yours respectfully,

T. THATCHER GRAVES, M. D.

Denver, Colo., Aug. 9, 1893.

Although States Attorney Stearns, who prosecuted the case, strongly urged the authorities to hold an autopsy and critically investigate the circumstances connected with the prisoner's death, this was not done, and many persons contended, among them Mrs. Graves and his attorney, Judge Macon, that Graves had not killed himself, but had been killed by persecution.

There was no inquest held, no post mortem examination.

Mrs. Barnaby died April 19, 1891. Graves was soon afterwards arrested. His trial for murder took place in Denver, and he was convicted and sentenced to hang on Jan. 2, 1891. But his case was reviewed by the Colorado Supreme Court and a new trial ordered. It was while waiting for his second trial that the prisoner was found dead in his cell.

REV. WALKER FOUND GUILTY.

BEATRICE, Neb., Oct. 19.—The case of Geo. T. Walker, a Baptist minister of Exeter, Neb., was concluded in the District Court tonight, the jury returning a verdict of guilty. The charge was bastardy and was brought by his former wife, from whom he was divorced in 1890. She claims that they lived together for a short time afterwards while he was attending a conference in Omaha.

He was released on his own recognizance, promising to go to jail in the morning. He says he will carry the case to the Supreme Court and will then get his temporary release on bond, though he refuses to give bond for the support of the child. Walker is well known in the State, having been a preacher, an editor and a postmaster.

TWO NEGROES LYNCHED.

SUMMERVILLE, Ga., Oct. 19.—Two negroes, Bill Richards and Jim Dickson, who killed Constable James Hall and seriously wounded Marshal Murphy, who attempted to arrest them on suspicion of murdering Carlo Hirdt and Joseph Sugarman last August, were taken from jail by an armed mob Tuesday night and lynched in the swamps near Trion factory. The mob gained entrance to the jail by strategy. Two men representing themselves as constables requested the jailer to lock up a third man who, they said, was sentenced to imprisonment. When he opened the door the mob forced their way through.

COTTON PRICE REGULATORS.

FULTON, Ark., Oct. 19.—Owners of cotton gins are receiving orders from regulators not to work their gins until cotton reaches the price of 10 cents per pound. This is a sample of the notices posted here as they were in Mississippi, Louisiana and Texas, where incendiarism followed disregard of the notification:

To Whom It May Concern:

You are hereby notified to immediately stop operations at this gin until cotton has reached the price of 10 cents per pound in the different markets of the country. Failing to comply with this request, we will assume no responsibility for what may transpire in connection with the gin-house and its contents.

REGULATORS.

VIOLATED POSTAL LAWS.

CARTHAGE, Mo., Oct. 19.—Richard Evans was arrested yesterday and taken before United States Commissioner J. D. Perkins on a charge of taking letters from the Post-office addressed to his wife, whom he has been separated from nearly a year. Being unable to furnish bail until court meets he was sent to jail.

HELD UP AND ROBBED.

GREENFIELD, Ill., Oct. 19.—Last night about 8 o'clock John Beard of Fayette, a small town four miles southeast of here, while walking to this place on the L., C. & W. R. R. track was held up at the railroad bridge just outside the city limits and robbed of $35 by two men, supposed to be negroes. A posse of men from this place started in pursuit.

CONVICTED OF ARSON.

WEST PLAINS, Mo., Oct. 19.—Some time ago Jas. Moore, according to the evidence, set fire to and burned a neighbor's threshing machine in Douglas County. He was indicted for arson, the case brought here on a change of venue, and Moore was convicted of the charge and given two years in the penitentiary. The evidence against him was very flimsey.

FOR ROBBING A COLLECTOR.

WEST PLAINS, Mo., Oct. 19.—F. Gache and wife of Ozark County have been bound over to the Grand Jury on the charge of robbing Collector W. C. Morris of that county of $800. The woman put the money under a rock after her arrest, but finally divulged the hiding place.

THE WOODRUFF CASE.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Oct. 19.—The State has closed its side of the Woodruff case, after making a strong showing against the defendant. Gov. Eagle testified that ex-Treasurer Woodruff told him that he could produce Johnson L. Jones whenever he was wanted. The verdict will probably be reached this afternoon.

UNDERTAKERS WRANGLE.

Two Firms Disputing Over the Remains of S. P. Hinckley.

This morning an inquest was held on the remains of S. P. Hinckley, the traveling salesman of McCoy & Co. hardware manufacturers of New York, who was found dead in a room at the European Hotel, 515 St. Charles street, yesterday morning. A verdict assigning heart disease as the cause of death was returned.

Since the death of Hinckley and the discovery of his remains a rivalry has sprung up between the undertaking firms of Sheehan & Bensiek and Eberle & Keyes as to who should ship the remains to Oak Park, Ill., where deceased formerly resided. The brother of the deceased, P. J. Hinckley, telegraphed to Sheehan & Bensiek to ship the remains and when these telegrams were shown to the Coroner this morning, the representative of Eberle & Keyes, who do the city undertaking, declared that the messages were bogus, and that they had the proper authority for the shipment of the body from the Shapleigh Hardward Co., with which firm Hinckley was on most intimate terms. Coroner Frank does not know exactly how to decide the difficulty, but it is most likely that Sheehan & Bensiek will be ordered to ship the remains, as they have been engaged by a relative of the dead man.

SCOTTISH RITE MASONS.

Degrees Conferred and the Delegates Given a Drive.

The Scottish Rite Masons began the concluding day's business of their present session this morning at 10 o'clock. Upon the members elected yesterday to higher rank, the Grand Commander conferred the degrees. Other business of a secret nature was attended to and at 2 p. m. the meeting adjourned for the pleasure of the day. Carriages were in waiting at Occidental Hall, and as soon as the meeting was adjourned the members started on a drive through the city. Tower Grove and Forest Parks and other points of interest were to be visited. They will then drive to the Fair Grounds, when they will be entertained at the Jockey Club-house.

At yesterday's meeting ninety-eight Knights Commander of the Court of Honor, representing twenty-one different States, were elected. Three thirty-third degree Masons were elected as active members of the Supreme Council, and fifty honorary thirty-third degree members were elected.

The meeting adjourned at 8 p. m., though the committee did not finish their work for some time after.

The banquet at the Noonday Club rooms last night was the crowning event of the pleasures of the guests' visit to the city. Besides Masons there were present a number of distinguished gentlemen of the city.

Mr. Wolfe's Withdrawal.

Mr. D. R. Wolfe, who had consented to run as delegate-at-large on the Mercantile Club ticket, writes the following letter to the POST-DISPATCH in explanation of his withdrawal:

DEAR SIR—Understanding the Executive Committees of both the Republican and Democratic parties preferred having the election of the School Board this fall conducted without expense to either political party, or those accepting its responsibilities, I consented upon the earnest request of representatives of the business men's meeting, composed of both Republicans and Democrats, to have my name presented for one of the delegates at large.

The recent course of the Executive Committee of both political parties showing a desire upon their part to make the issue upon party lines, I feel compelled to decline becoming a candidate for the following reasons:

1. I think it unwise and inexpedient to introduce politics into our educational system, as both parties should support our public school system without fear or favor.

Intelligence and integrity must ever be the basis of free institutions.

2. At the business men's meeting I am informed (I was not present), I received the unanimous vote of every one present, Republicans and Democrats, I understand a large part, if not indeed a majority of them, were Democrats, whose kindly action I appreciate most highly and take pleasure in acknowledging publicly, as all who know me personally know I am a Republican upon all political issues.

3. The position of a director of the Public schools of St Louis should be one of the highest honor and ought, in my judgment, to be independent of politics, and free from every monetary consideration or influence.

As this election is not to be conducted upon this basis, it is both just and courteous to my Democratic friends, as well as respectful to the Executive Committee of the Republican party, for me to decline becoming a candidate for school director at the ensuing election.

R. A. Martin & Son Assign.

PETERSBURG, Va., Oct. 19.—R. A. Martin & Son, commission merchants of this city, have made an assignment to C. B. Davis, trustee. This was the oldest business house in Petersburg and the failure was a surprise in business circles.

A COMPROMISE

The Settling of the Repeal Question in the Senate.

Silver Men Say That It Lies in the Power of Republicans.

POSSIBLE FOR THE FAULKNER MEASURE TO PASS AT ANY TIME.

There Are Enough Democratic Votes to Make It Go Through Whenever the Silver Republicans Shall Assent—Intimated These Votes May Be Secured in a Short Time—An Ironical Situation—Congress and Washington.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 19.—It is said by the silver men that it lies in the power of the silver Republicans to settle the question in the Senate by a compromise at any time. The Faulkner proposition they say has enough Democratic votes to secure its passage at any time that the silver Republicans will assent to it. It is intimated that the votes of these men may be secured before long.

There is a peculiar irony in the attitude assumed by the silver men since the discussion has been switched from the Voorhees bill to the question of rules. After the assertion of Mr. Daniel yesterday that the majority were obstructing the business of the Senate and delaying the legitimate debate of the financial question by calling into question the correctness of the journal and by trying to get up a new set of rules, there comes to-day the cold-blooded proposition that silver men are tired of the obstruction thrown in the way of a fair settlement of the question and that if the repealers will not consider some compromise to get the Senate out of the difficulty they will have to undergo another protracted session night and day.

The little comedy, it is said, will be enacted with all show of seriousness, and in fact it has a serious look to it. The decree of the silver men is that if some settlement is not in sight by Saturday, the debate of the journal having run on meanwhile, they will insist upon a continuous sermon until something is accomplished. Nothing could better illustrate the topsy turvey situation in the Senate than this serio-comic assumption that the fault of delay lies with the repealers. The truth is, however, the failure to secure a new promise of some sort before this time is due to the holding out of a comparatively small number of the repealers against any suggestion of a compromise.

A BASIS OF AGREEMENT.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 18.—The fact that Senators Cockrell and Vest and a few other silver Democrats are in conference with Voorhees and other Administration Senators this afternoon is giving the impression that a basis is about to be reached, upon which the Democrats can agree and end the present condition of affairs in the Senate.

TO FORCE A VOTE.

Senator Hill and Others Hard at Work on His Plan.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19.—Mr. Hill and those other Senators who do not propose to have the traditions of the Senate stand in the way of legislation are hard at work today on a plan of Mr. Hill's to force a vote on a change of rules. The Administration sanction is said to be given to Mr. Hill's plan, and he and all those who agree with him admit of no doubt that they will succeed.

The caucus of the Republicans held last night was for the purpose of trying to get enough Republicans to join with Democrats under the leadership of Hill to force a vote on the change of rules and thus to secure the adoption of closure. The caucus was in the form of a dinner at the residence of Senator McMillin, and seventeen Republicans were present. Mr. Frye was a champion of the proposition for closure and the matter was discussed at length, but the action required was not secured, for the reason that there were not enough present, and those there were not all in favor of the plan.

To-day Mr. Hill is trying to get signatures of Democrats to a paper pledging them to give their votes and support in every way to an attempt to cut off dilatory moves and to secure the prompt adoption of closure. A similar paper is being circulated among the Republicans. Hill wants twenty Democrats and twenty-three Republicans, and appears to be perfectly confident that he will get them. How they propose to use the votes if secured is not disclosed. But since the Vice-President will not go outside of the traditional rules of the Senate it could only be on an appeal from his decision that anything could be hoped for by Hill.

The move has caused a great deal of talk in the Senate and some excitement. It is not believed to be possible for the signatures of a majority to be secured in support of the project, but the attempt is regarded as bold and threatening to the stability of the musty traditions of the Senate. At the same time talk of compromise is renewed and it is said that this time something is sure to come out of it.

The conference of Republicans of the several factions, who are trying to get together on a conference, has been in progress off and on all during the day. The plan now discussed is a modification of those heretofore considered, and the projectors declare that its adoption will in all probability be secured before this week closes.

WATCHIHG FOR MISTAKES.

Senate Republicans Getting Ready for Any Democratic Blunders.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19.—The Republicans in the Senate are getting into shape to be able to take advantage as a party of any mistakes which the Democrats may make on the financial question, as affected by the Wilson-Voorhees repeal bills.

Senator Sherman's speech has had the effect of stirring them up to the importance of being prepared for united action if the opportunity should present itself, and ever since the speech was made they have been discussing the advisability of a meeting for the exchange of views and for the purpose of outlining a plan. This desultory talk resulted in a decision on the part of Senator McMillin to invite the repeal Republicans to meet at his house, which they did last night at 9:30 o'clock. None of the free coinage Republicans were present, but there was quite a full attendance of members now in the city who favor repeal, including Messrs. Sherman, Hoar, Frye, Cullom, Aldrich, Proctor, Manderson, Carr, Lodge, McMillin, Davis and Gallinger. Senator Frye was called to the chair and most of those present expressed their views at length upon the situation and the line of policy to be pursued. The meeting did not adjourn until midnight. One of the leading members of the conference expressed the opinion that the Democrats could not agree on any line of policy and said that this was in accord with information received from some of the best informed Democrats.

Taking this information as a basis for their remarks, the Republicans present were asked to outline their views as to what should be done. There was practical unanimity of opinion to the effect that the best policy to pursue at present was to remain perfectly quiet and permit the Democrats to take their own course, to do nothing to assist in disentangling the present snarl in the Senate nor anything to prevent the progress of the repeal bill. They resolved to give the Democrats to understand that as a party they were here to vote upon the bill whenever it should be brought forward and were prepared to remain in the Senate as long as would be necessary to pass the measure, but that if it should become evident that the Democrats could not possibly agree after a further and sufficient trial the Republicans should themselves prepare a measure and ask the Senate to pass it.

There was some discussion on the rules and the majority expressed a willingness to assist in amending these if necessary to get the bill through. There was some difference of opinion on this subject, however, and some Senators expressed disapproval of any change which would help the Democrats in passing the tariff and elections bill. It was generally agreed, however, that there was no possibility of amending the rules at present. The discussion as to the merits of any action which the Republicans might take looking to a settlement of the question indicated that the sentiment was not all on the side of unconditional repeal, but several expressed the opinion that a compromise which would continue to give silver recognition would be preferable. It is stated that the Republicans present who did not compose a majority of the party in the Senate, decided to let their course in the future depend upon getting the acquiescence of a majority.

THE GOLD RESERVE.

A Marked Decrease Noted—St. Louis Collectorship—Washington.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 19.—The gold reserve in the Treasury has decreased from $93,582,073 to $82,966,073, while the currency balance has increased about $8,000,000 in the same time. It was yesterday $21,392,000. Subsidiary silver coin forms $13,000,000 of the balance, and from $3,000,000 to $5,000,000 of the net balance is being used every day in replacing mutilated currency, which is still $5,000,000 behind in its redemption. Government receipts for October to date are $100,850,000; expenditures, $17,216,000.

APPRAISEMENT OF EXPOSITION EXHIBITS.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19.—Acting Secretary Hamlin of the Treasury Department has declined to approve a suggestion made by Hon. M. H. DeYoung of San Francisco that all goods arriving at the San Francisco Midwinter Exposition be examined and appraised immediately upon their arrival at that place. The department has an adequate force of appraisers at Chicago for the due appraisement of all exhibits which are to be transferred from there to San Francisco, and the department prefers, says the Acting Secretary, that their services should be utilized for the purpose of completing the appraisement before the transportation of the goods.

NOT ENTITLED TO ALLOTMENTS.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 19.—The Secretary of the Interior has approved the decision of the Assistant Attorney-General that half-breeds who were paid scrip under the act of 1854 are not now entitled as "Indians" to an allotment.

REGARDING ENTRY OF CHINESE.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 19.—The Treasury Department has addressed a letter to Hon. H. M. DeYoung of San Francisco concerning the entry into the United States of Chinese in connection with the exhibits for the midwinter exhibition to be held at San Francisco. Mr. DeYoung was informed that the collector of customs would be governed by the law in the case, which permitted the entry into the United States of bona fide exhibitors and their assistants.

ST. LOUIS COLLECTORSHIP.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 19.—It is generally understood here that Judge Charles Speck has been nominated for Collector of Internal revenue at St. Louis. The nomination will not be sent to the Senate until the nomination for the Western District of Missouri is determined upon. The administration is withholding all appointments, as far as possible, in order that the silver question may monopolize the attention of the Senate.

THE MAJORITY TO BLAME.

Senator Mills' Plain Talk on the Paralysis of Legislation.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 19.—The event of yesterday afternoon's session of the Senate was the speech of Senator Mills of Texas, who in pointing out the cause of delay in legislation in the Senate said:

"I do not blame the minority. I blame the majority for sitting still like children and permitting the Government to be paralyzed. The Government is in a state of paralysis. You cannot pass an appropriation or a bill reducing taxation, nor help your commerce, because we are told the Senate has left its rules and abdicated its power and the great branch of the Government instituted with power to legislate for the people is a dead body until the minority permits it to act.

"The issue has entirely changed, and it is useless discussing the wisdom or unwisdom of the repeal of the Sherman law. The whole question on which the American people have the deepest interest to-day is, shall the majority or the minority of the legislative branch rule? Shall the public will be uttered or allowed to stand at the demand of the minority or majority? Who shall prescribe the terms of having to say to us, 'You must register our decree?' I am asked tauntingly, 'Will I go into a caucus, and will I sign a paper that I will agree to abide by and carry into execution whatever the majority in the caucus shall write down?' I say without any hesitation, no. I have not touched that point of self-abasement that I will come here and register the will of somebody from some other part of the land."

Mr. Mills said that so long as he had been in Congress no such proposition had been made. He announced his willingness to go into a conference. In reference to the criticism of his statement that he would vote for no amendment to the pending bill, Mr. Mills said he was the proprietor of his own vote and would vote it as he pleased. There was a time when he talked of compromise, but since the chief of the Democratic Administration was charged with infidelity to his party and there was the beginning of an anti-administration party in the Senate he cut his bridges and burned them behind him on the subject of compromise. He was a Democrat who stood by the organized Administration of his party, and the Democratic people would do the same thing. The people did not intend to abandon the organization, nor did they intend to see the chief of that Administration pulled down.

"I do not intend to be deterred by the taunts that I am serving with the Senator from Ohio (Mr. Sherman), that he is my chief. Politics make strange bed-fellows. Where does the other gentleman stand? Under the leadership of the distinguished Senator from Kansas (Mr. Peffer)? [Great laughter.] It is a question of taste very much about these things. If there is more affinity, more of attachment for the doctrines of the Senator from Kansas, I say to my friends, go as you like it."

A Ten Years' Penalty.

QUINCY, Oct. 18.—In the Criminal Court here this morning James Cobb was found guilty of an assault to kill James Knox of Fowler, and his punishment was fixed at ten years in the Penitentiary. This ends the mystery that has been the talk of the county for the past five years.

Pastime Pool Games.

The opening games in the Pastime Athletic Club's fifteen-ball continuous pool tournament were played last night and resulted as follows: Bixby 100, Williams 63; Russell 100, Harris 49; Highleyman 100, Harris 96.

DID THE BOOKS

Horse-Owners Make a Haul at South Side Park.

They Work Through Several Sure Things on the Track.

IT WAS CLOSING NIGHT AND THEY SCORCHED THE MANAGEMENT.

The Latter Admit That the Books Lost Heavily as the Result of Jobs—Horses Which Opened at 20 to 1 Hammered Down to 2 to 1 Before Going to the Post—Down-Town Pool Rooms Also Suffer—It Is Estimated That $10,000 Was Secured.

The long spring, summer and autumn meeting at the South Side electric light track was wound up last night in a blaze of glory, so far as the horsemen and the jockeys were concerned. Such was not the case with Mr. Frank Shaw, who operated the betting ring, and the keepers of the downtown pool rooms. The cause of their dissatisfaction with the closing night's racing was the main topic of comment in local turf circles to-day, and, to use the language of a typical turfite, three, if not four, of last night's winners were "shooed in." Mary Belle, Jim Reed and Bertha B., it is claimed were known to be three winners hatched before the races they won were run while Dark Knight is also thought by some to have been jabbed under the wire. Bangum, winner of the first race, is believed to have won on his merits. He was a hot second choice at 6 to 5, and most of the money wagered on his chances came from what is known at the track as the angel element. The smart crowd, which includes the owners, jockeys and trainers were down on Dark Knight to a man to the second event, but he figured a good thing on form, so his victory did not come unexpected, and may have been on its merits. The books were hit hard, however. In the third race the fun commenced in earnest. Mary Belle, with Strausser up, was to be unbottled, and the knowing ones were onto the fact that the rest of the bunch, which included performers fast enough to beat Mary a block, it is claimed, were "dead."

STRANGE BETTING.

She opened at 20 to 1 and was backed so consistently that 2 to 1 was the best price to be obtained against her, as the bugle sounded the call to the post. The big play on the race in the pool rooms was also confined to the mare exclusively. The jockeys "fiddled" around at the post until Strausser broke nicely with Mary, and not until this happened was starter Bruen able to let them off. The result was Mary won, with something to spare, after making all the running. The form selections caused her no trouble at any stage of the race, to the astonishment of the calculators. Mr. Shaw's cashiers were still busy paying off tickets on Mary Belle, when the identical crowd, almost, swooped down upon them again and commenced to cash in on Jim Reed, winner of the third race. Jim belongs to W. P. Jenkins and he was figured to finish among the "also rans." Nevertheless, he was backed from 8 to 1 to 3 to 2 and his supporters were as eager to take the latter price as they were 8 to 1. A tall, raw-boned, county-fair looking individual made the rounds of the pool-rooms playing Jim straight and to show. One of the North Sixth street rooms took a bundle of his money at 3 to 1 straight and 3 to 2 to show. Like Mary Belle, Jim would not break until snugly placed and then, after hugging the rail all around in hand, with Montana Belle, [illegible] the winner [illegible] this race [illegible] in the [illegible] turns.

A THIRD DUMP.

It was the same story in the last race. Pigeon [illegible] help [illegible] selected [illegible] handily, [illegible] Belle and Jim Reed's victories. Bertha opened at 15 to 1 and [illegible] unlimited [illegible] the post [illegible]

Every down town pool room in the city that booked [illegible] dollars on [illegible] suppose [illegible] "game" [illegible] the winter [illegible] $10,000 went from Shaw's book and the pool rooms, beyond a doubt.

FROM EAR TO EAR.

The Desperate Attempt at Self Destruction of J. A. Widner.

MALVERN, Ark., Oct. 19.—J. A. Widner, a passenger on train from Mountain train No. 54 at Wilson, Tex., horrified the passengers by drawing a knife from his pocket and cutting his throat from ear to ear as the train pulled out of Arkadelphia, a station twenty miles south. The passengers rushed to the car, but had the presence of mind to pull the bell cord and back the train up to the platform. Before this could be done, however, the [illegible] and the gaping wound presented a horrible sight. The bewildered occupants having placed [illegible] re-entered the coach and found him [illegible] parently lifeless [illegible] and placed [illegible] says recovery is impossible. IT WAS TABLED.

Resolution to Keep Saloonkeepers Out of the K. of P.

JAMES A. REED OF KANSAS CITY ELECTED GRAND CHANCELLOR.

Report in Favor of the Appointment of a State Lecturer—City Against the Country—Officers to Be Elected This Afternoon.

Somewhat of a sensation was created at the morning session of the Grand Lodge of the Knights of Pythias by the introduction of a resolution by Delegate Frank Griffin of Maryville, Mo., prohibiting saloon-keepers from joining the Grand Lodge. The resolution also prohibited the saloon-keepers now members of the K. of P. from attending further meetings of the lodge unless they gave up their business. The resolution created a furor and was discussed from 9 o'clock until after 11, when it was tabled until the next annual meeting. The gentleman who introduced the resolution is the same officer of the Grand Lodge whom charges unbecoming an official were preferred again at Tuesday's session. As the charges were withdrawn it was intimated that the resolution was introduced as a piece of spite work, but this rumor was denied by members of the country delegation. The resolution was fought hard by the St. Louis delegation, who swear by all that is good and holy that it will be tabled every time it is brought up.

FAVOR A SUPREME LECTURER.

The committee which was appointed yesterday to consider the appointment and employment of a Supreme Lecturer made its report at noon. The report favored the employment of a lecturer, the salary to be determined by the Grand Lodge, in accordance with the rules of the lodge. No action will be taken in the matter for one year.

Grand Chancellor Wagoner rendered his decisions upon questions brought up at the twenty-second annual meeting, all of which, except one knotty question, were received with favor. For some years past the local lodges have tried to railroad a resolution through the Grand Lodge providing for the staying of all fines against members who, for various reasons, failed to attend funerals of brother members. The Supreme Chancellor ruled this morning that no member who failed to attend a funeral could be fined. The Kansas City delegation made a strong fight against the decision with the hope of having it reversed, but it was a fight without results.

The Kansas City delegation then sprung the much mooted question that has been agitated at every meeting for four years past, that of members of the Grand Lodge becoming honorary members of the Pythian Sisters. The Supreme Chancellor ruled this morning that no member of the Grand Lodge could become an honorary member of the society without violating his obligations and cautioned all Pythians against becoming members of it. This information was soon conveyed to the members of the Pythian Sisters, composed of the wives of the members of the Grand Lodge, who will probably take some action themselves in the matter. It is pretty generally understood that at their next meeting, to be held at Excelsior Springs in October, '94, the name of the society will be changed to comply with the constitution of the Grand Lodge, whereby members of the Grand Lodge can become honorary members of their society.

At 1 o'clock officers to serve the ensuing year were elected as follows:

THE NEW OFFICERS.

Grand Chancellor, James A. Reed, Kansas City.

Vice Grand Chancellor, J. A. Frink, Springfield.

The convention adjourned at 1:30 o'clock until 2:30, when a Keeper of Records and Seal, Captain of the Guards, Inner and Outer Guards, Grand Master of Exchequer and Supreme Representative will be chosen. It is generally conceded that Adam Thies of Hannibal will be elected Grand Master of the Exchequer and Col. John H. Holmes will be re-elected Keeper of Records and Seal. For Supreme Representative there will be a lively fight, the present Representative, J. C. Radcliffe of Kansas City having an opponent in the person of Hon. Ed Harber of Trenton, Mo. The convention will adjourn this evening to meet in October, '94, at Excelsior Springs.

WORLD'S FAIR EXHIBITS.

A Movement to Obtain Works of Art for St. Louis.

Two letters from Prof. S. Waterhouse of the Washington University, one addressed to James E. Yeatman and the other to George D. Barnard, President of the Mercantile Club, were to-day sent to Secretary Morgan of the Merchants' Exchange. Prof. Waterhouse states that at the close of the World's Fair a great many articles in the line of art may be obtained as gifts if the owners are properly approached. These could be obtained, he believes, if the owners were properly approached, and could be placed either in the Art School, or be used as the foundation of a city museum. He asked that the commercial bodies combine and send a representative to Chicago to see what could be done. A meeting has been called for Oct. 23 at the Mercantile Club, and President Anderson appointed D. T. Bushnell, D. C. Ball, A. T. Harlow, W. G. Boyd and George H. Morgan to represent the Exchange.

IN NEED OF MONEY.

Horse Owner McCafferty Said to Be Hard Pressed.

BELIEF THAT HE HAS LOST HEAVILY ON THE SEASON.

It Is Thought That Financial Stringency Forced Him to Sell the $20,000 Aloha for $3,200—The New Western League Does Not Include High Salaried Players—Sporting News.

It has been known for some time past that Johnny McCafferty's expectations have not been realized this season and the rumor that the "Poo Bah" turfman is in stringent circumstances is given some credence in local turf circles. The little Georgian had a run of remarkable good luck last season on both Western and Eastern circuits and when the Board of Control campaign wound up at Morris Park last fall it was reliably estimated he was over $100,000 ahead of the game. This wonderful success must have startled even McCafferty himself, as in previous years his stable never included anything but the common cheap selling plater. His good fortune was due entirely to his own shrewdness and having unlimited confidence in himself, he started into gather together a big string with which he could sweep both circuits this season. The result was last spring found him with over forty head in training, the largest stable ever campaigned on the Western circuit. His stable entries were enormous all along the line, and the stable expenses as large as the pay roll of a street car company almost. The 2-year division of the string, which cost a world of money, has been of no account, however, and the 3-year-olds and aged handicappers not much better, except as selling-platers. Instead of turning out some stake winning youngsters the 2-year-old division did not develop any kind of a good winner. The fact that his youngsters were of no account or at least would not be this season, was realized by McCafferty while he was in this city last summer.

This is what induced him no doubt to pay over $8,000 for Fatality, W. O'Brien McDonaugh's highly promising and extensively engaged stake filly. She has only proven capable, however, of winning cheap selling races in the East. When she won at Linden last Monday McCafferty had her entered for $500. Helen Nichols, for whom Richard Croker offered $30,000 last winter, managed to win the $10,000 Queen Isabella stakes at Washington Park, the only really valuable event the stable has captured this season. Since taken East, however, she has hardly won her oats, although started among only fair classed platers. Hugh Penny has turned a good sprinting plater, but Gov. Fifer does not seem to be worth his salt. Little Billy and Tom Harding are both in Hugh Penny's class. The $20,000 Aloha, expected to prove one of the best handicap performers of the year, was sold for $3,200. The best he could do for McCafferty was to win a small purse occasionally. The amount paid out in forfeits, coupled with the expenses of the stable, must have amounted to a small-sized fortune. The fact that Aloha was let go for $3,200 had much to do, no doubt, with the impression getting out that the little Georgian was hard up for ready cash. When in this city last he expressed a determination of going into the breeding business within the next year, with Aloha at the head of his stud. The son of St. Mungo and Ollie is a very highly bred animal. Notwithstanding all reports to the contrary, McCafferty can hardly be called a real poor man as long as he owns such horses as Helen Nichols, Hugh Penny, Tom Harding, Little Billy and Fatality.

The grand stand and betting ring of Frank Shaw's new track across the river will be patterned after the Saratoga stand and speculating arena. The St. Paul man and his associates in the venture have concluded to spend $75,000 erecting the new course and it is hardly necessary to and that it is expected to be the most perfect track for winter racing purposes in the West. In addition to having sandy going, equally as good as the present course across the river, the new track will be a regulation mile affair, which, of course, will place it above the merry-go-round class, of which there are so many in this vicinity just at present. The scheduled early opening of the new track shows how active Shaw's backers are pushing the famous Western betting ring, "Major Domo's" latest undertaking. The moneyed men behind the St. Paul man are said to represent capital enough to erect a circuit of race tracks. This fact demonstrates conclusively that the bank-roll of the new track's foreign book will hardly be as light as the roll Madison's foreign book commenced business with last fall. The opening of the new track will see the inauguration of a real sure enough race-track war in this vicinity. To keep up with the procession the East St. Louis Jockey Club magnates will have to extend their present one-half mile course into something like a real race track.

Only two men were ruled off the Eastern turf this year for fraud. One man appealed to the Board of Control for a rehearing. His request was granted, and the board, after carefully considering his case, decided that he deserved his punishment and refused to reverse the decision of the judges. A month later, without giving any reason, this man was reinstated. The second owner, who was ruled off by the judges, was reinstated the next day by the board. At the present time the only men in the East who are ruled off the turf are two reporters, who criticised the racing.

Ed Corrigan, the master of Hawthorne, says there was no authority for the announcement that the Lamplighter-Yo Tambien-Clifford match could probably take place Saturday. Lamplighter can hardly prepare for a race by that time and the contest will probably take place some day next week.

LOCAL RACING RESULTS.

India, equal favorite with John Dunn at 9 to 5, won the 2-year-old handicap sweepstakes at the course across the river yesterday. The other winners were Lulu May and Tamerlane at 6 to 1 each, No Remarks at 3 to 2, and Ranier at 12 to 1.

The night meeting at South Side Park was brought to a close last evening. There has been racing on 161 nights and thirty-four afternoons during the past season, and during that time over $126,000 in purses have been distributed among a host of owners. The winners last night were Fonda at 6 to 5, Dark Knight at 3 to 2, Mary Belle at 2 to 1, Jim Reed at 3 to 2, and Bertha B. at 3 to 1.

YESTERDAY'S WINNERS ELSEWHERE.

At Hawthorne—Amelia May, Mockahi, Piccolo, O'Connell and Hy Dy.
At Lexington—Hesperia, La Rosa, Response, The Queen and Probasco.
At Kansas City—J. R. Coats, Gold Dust, Ike S., Rube Burrows, Leumbria and Catoosa.
At Gloucester—Blue Wind, Extra Silence, Musmee, Psyche and Criterion.

LIMITED SALARY LIST.

The New Western League Will Not Include High Priced Players.

John T. Brush of Indianapolis, who, however, runs the Cincinnati League team, is said to be at the head of a scheme to organize a Western Base Ball League, and it is claimed that the league will be formed. The meeting at which the details of organization are to be effected will be held at Chicago Oct. 25. Representatives of Milwaukee, Detroit, Toledo, Minneapolis, Omaha and Kansas City, and probably from St. Paul, Columbus and Grand Rapids will be present. The salary list will be limited to $1,500 or $1,800 a year. Managers in the different cities are already signing players for next year, and Mr. Brush promises to have a club in Indianapolis that will be as strong as any of the league clubs when the season is opened.

According to reports from New York there will be some radical changes in the Giants next year. Ward will stick, of course. Mike Tiernan will be swapped if some good man can be obtained for him. "Shorty" Fuller has proved to be an in and out player in everything except base running. If he stays on the team it will be as a "utility." Davis has not been up to the mark at third and will probably take Tiernan's place in the outfield if the latter is traded off.

Jack O'Connor, the crack Cleveland catcher and outfielder, has returned to the city with his wife and will spend the winter at his home in North St. Louis. According to O'Connor, Manager and Capt. Pat Tebeau, also a North St. Louis boy, will remain in the Forest City during the cold months, instead of this city, as has been the case heretofore. "Pat, however, expects to be in St. Louis for a month or so around the holidays," says O'Connor.

GOV. FLOWER SILENT.

He Will Not Outline His Policy Regarding the Corbett-Mitchell Fight.

Any efforts to get information from Gov. Flower as to what his course will be in reference to the Mitchell-Corbett fight have been futile. He has stated, however, that he has received no official notification that the law has been violated, and until he does so cannot act. Then he further states that under no consideration will he outline his policy. To the politician this looks as if the Governor had determined to pospone all action until after election. If he should decide against the club then the Democratic party would lose the support of John Y. McKane, and that is liable to prove an important factor in this fall's campaign.

The star attraction of the next show of the New Jersey Amusement Co. will probably be a six-round contest between Bob Fitzsimmons and Steve O'Donnell, the Australian heavy weight.

SITUATION STRAINED.

All Political Parties Estranged From the Austrian Government.

VIENNA, Oct. 19.—The political situation in Austria is greatly strained. The Government does not possess the majority necessary to pass a motion of approval of the repressive measures taken in regard to the city of Prague as a result of the Czech disturbances. All parties are astranged from the Government on account of the franchise bill, and the journeying of Count Von Taafe, President of the Council and Minister of the Interior, and Count Von Kalnoky, Minister of Foreign Affairs, to Buda Pesth, where they are to consult with Emperor Francis Joseph, has given rise to the report that a dissolution of Parliament is to be anticipated in the near future.

AFFAIRS IN FRANCE.

PARIS, Oct. 19.—With a "Vive la Russe" the French people continue to en vant la fanfare. No more forcible illustration of the fickleness of the French nature could be afforded than this continuous round of festivities, while MacMahon and Gounod are lying in state, dead at the gates of Paris, whose citizens have no time to attend their funerals until the cup of pleasure has been drained to the dregs in company with the Russians.

President Carnot has definitely decided to visit Toulon on Oct. 27, accompanied by Baron De Mohrnheim, the Russian Ambassador, and by M. Dupuy, Minister of Public Instruction, and M. De Velle, Minister of Foreign Affairs.

The citizens of Paris, as a further honor to be conferred upon the Russians, propose to change the name of the boulevard Leygoutier to the Boulevard Avellan. It is also suggested to change the name of the new iron-clad, which is to be launched on the 27th inst., either to Tzar or Russe.

There will be a huge picnic at Hyeres to-morrow, at which many of the seamen of the Russian fleet will be present.

THE BRAZILIAN TROUBLES.

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay, Oct. 18.—Peixoto's government has declared that it will not be responsible for loses to natives or foreigners resulting from the revolution in Brazil. All persons who had been in the army and navy of Brazil and joined the revolutionary forces have been branded as deserters. Santa Catherina has declared its separation from the Republic until President Peixoto resigns.

The coast defense turret ship Bahia, has been sent down the river to join the Tiradentes and engage Mello's fleet in a naval battle at Rio. The rebel ship, De Setembro, has been floated and will be repaired under protection of the guns of Mello's warships. The sinking of the ship Arano with insurgents aboard has been confirmed. The crew were saved and seventeen prisoners taken by Peixoto's troops. Many persons were drowned.

News comes from Buenos Ayres that Rio was under fire all day Tuesday. Great damage was done by the bombardment and thousands of residents fled in terror.

AGAINST BELGIANS.

PARIS, Oct. 19.—The Libre Parol says that an alliance has been concluded between Servia and Greece and Montenegro, and that this alliance is directed chiefly against Bulgaria and Bulgarian influence. The understanding arrived at between the three countries mentioned is understood to be the work of Russia, through her agents in Servia, Greece and Montenegro, and is looked upon as being a great triumph for Russian diplomacy and as a decided check upon the triumphant onward march of the Dreibund.

OUR FINANCES.

The Second Day's Proceedings of the Bankers' Convention.

Mr. Horace White's Able Address the Feature of the Day.

JOSEPH HENDRIX' PAPER ON AUSTRALIAN AND AMERICAN PANICS.

His Vivid Picture of the Rush of British Capital to Australia and the Collapse Following the Period of Financial Intoxication—The Laws Fathered by Bland and Sherman Scored for Their Evil Effect on Foreigners Seeking Investment in the United States—Other Interesting Speakers.

CHICAGO, Ill., Oct. 19.—The feature of to-day's proceedings at the Bankers' Convention was an address by Horace White of New York.

Mr. White's address is in part as follows:

Nearly everybody who busies himself with the subject of finance says that we ought to have an elastic currency. What is meant by that? Evidently it is a currency that will expand when there is an active demand for it and contract when the demand subsides. This suggests another query: What do we mean by demand? We mean the demand for money to carry on the exchange of the products of the country, which move at certain periods and years in larger volume than at other periods and years, depending upon the state of the crops and the market for them.

We all agree that the currency ought to be elastic in the sense of being more abundant when the exchanges of goods are rapid and extensive and less abundant, when the contrary condition exists. How can we get this kind of currency?

We cannot get it from the Government, because the Government cannot know when the demand for money is increasing or diminishing. I believe it has never been proposed to gauge the issuing of currency by the collections at the Custom-house, but that method would be much more philosophical than the per capita method.

Mr. White then gave the history of money from the early ages to the present time, and continuing, said:

But the point I wish to illustrate is that a check on a bank, or a private individual's acceptance, or a certificate of deposit in an insurance company, or any kind of shin-plaster will perform all the functions of a bank note if the public have the same confidence in the issuer. There is no difference between the check and the bank note as regards their intrinsic nature and character.

A perfectly elastic currency would be one which should rise and fall in volume pari passu with the quantity of sugar, flour, cloth and other commodities seeking to be exchanged for each other.

It is easy to see that the check system is automatic and elastic and that it accommodates itself to the volume of business at one time as well as at another. It is not quite so easy to see that the bank note system may be automatic and elastic in the same way.

Now, our problem is to devise a system where the bank note shall be elastic like the check, and in like manner make barter a science. We can see now, if not before, why the Government has no facilities for imparting elasticity to the currency. It has neither the requisite knowledge of the needs of business nor the means of responding to them. Even if it had an oracle to keep it informed of the needs of business, it would have no means of putting the money where it is needed unless it should go into the business of discounting commercial paper, in which case it would have to receive deposits also and perform the other functions of a bank.

Under the George Smith regime, when the certificate of deposit was first made prominent, there was abundance of money for legitimate trade. This means simply that for the purpose of bartering the consumable products of the country against each other there was no lack of instruments of exchange. It is not a banking function to furnish capital for the building up of a new country or for permanent works of any kind. Most of the misfortunes that have overtaken banks in this country have resulted from loans to speculators, such as advances to railway builders, to real estate owners and the like. No currency will ever be elastic enough to satisfy such wants.

The requisites of an elastic currency are first, that there must be no limit set upon it except the demands for instruments with which to exchange the consumable products and materials moving through the country, including such as have been imported from, or going to, foreign countries; second, it must be issuable at once as the demand for it arises, without awaiting for somebody else to do something else and without expending more money in making preparations for it than is fairly obtained. The present national bank currency is not now, and never was, an elastic currency. It has great and abundant merits, but elasticity is not one of them. Of late years it has been losing such elasticity as it ever had. Instead of expanding to the wants of trade it contracts. The recent increase is spasmodic, being due to a wholly normal condition of business.

The great merit of the national bank currency is its security. This is due to the Government's guaranty which in its turn is justified with the Government's guaranty is all sufficient for the notes it issues. United States bonds issue can be dispensed with as part of the security of the Government.

Mr. White then read a copy of a communication from the Comptroller of the United States showing that the taxes levied on the national banks of the United States since the organization of the system had netted the Government the round sum of $130,190,000 and continued:

It appears, therefore, that if there had never been any bonds issued for national bank notes the Government would have lost less than $1,000,000 by redeeming the notes of all failed banks. If there had been a common fund of something like $1,000,000 accumulated by taxing of banks, no loss would have resulted to the Government.

Mr. White then went on to say:

Bond security for bank notes is not consistent with elasticity. If you ask me if I consider elasticity a more valuable feature than security, I say decidedly no. Our first claims should be for both security and elasticity. Both are attained in the Scotch system by unlimited liability of the shareholders of banks for their note issues. Formerly the liability of shareholders of all the banks except three were unlimited as to assets whatever, but since the failure of the City of Glasgow Bank, and largely in consequence of it, the unlimited liability clause has been repealed except as to issues. Thus it has happened that thousands of notes of failed banks in Scotland have always been received by the other banks at par and have never depreciated. Although they have neither bonds requisite, nor safety fund behind them.

If a bank note system is both elastic and secure we have every requisite of a perfect system. What we mean by a perfect system is the convertibility of a bank note into gold on demand. It is the financial firmament that the limit of fiat money that runs away with $100,000,000 of gold has been reached. I only regret that this additional relief for which we see a real demand was obtained at such a costly rate by the purchase of silver bullion, whereas the public might have been more easily and accurately served with bank notes, which costs nothing but the printing. I say bank, not Government notes. The reason that bank notes are preferable is that they are constantly balancing each other in trade, just as checks do. In other words they carry themselves without the use of gold. Gold is used as a touchstone all the time, but its actual transfer is required only to settle balances of international trade.

Mr. White exampled the imperial banks of Germany, France and England as a good way to dispense with bond security for bank notes. He also said:

There is no reason that I can discover that the national banks should not be allowed to have branches as the Scottish and the Canadian banks do.

Mr. White then went on to show why the national banking act must be gotten rid of if a flexible currency is secured, insofar as the "bond security" clause was concerned, saying:

If bond security were dispensed with and its place taken by either a safety fund, unlimited liability or banking consolidation an elastic currency would be secured.

In conclusion Mr. White read the bill, which was drawn up by him last winter and introduced in the House of Representatives by Mr. Walker of Massachusetts.

"The panic in Australia and the United States," was the subject discussed by Hon. Joseph C. Hendrix of New York. He drew a vivid picture of the rush of British capital to Australia and the collapse which followed the period of "financial intoxication." He continued:

The imagination is dazzled by the splendor of the era that must have followed the resumption of specie payments in this country had we clung to a stable standard of value and promptly crushed out the false finance of the silver producer and the fiat money apostle. The Bland act, followed by the Sherman act, with a coinage party never idle in Congress, drove away the foreign capital that Australia has since squandered, and this distrust of Europe in our ability to keep upon a gold basis came so vividly home to us when the free gold in our Treasury fell below the point of fixed reserve that our own people caught the infection of distrust. Every sign pointed to a steady drain, and the European holders of our securities to the extent of probably a thousand millions had our gold supply at their mercy. Large holders of cash or its equivalent began to get their money into gold or its representative, and to use safe deposit vaults instead of banks. The day of judgment in our finances seemed at hand. The apparition of the 60-cent-dollar frightened the Savings Bank depositors. The National banks from May 4 to July 12 lost $193,000,000 of deposits. Savings banks, State banks, trust companies and private banks, that great collection of financial institutions from which we get no adequate or uniform concentrated reports, lost in the same proportion. All kinds of money were hoarded. We began to think about ourselves just as the foreigners for years had been thinking about us.

It is a curious fact that in the sections of the country most fertile in financial heresy and most prolific of legislation inimical to banking and money-lenders, the bank failures have been largest. Kansas leads the list in the number of failures. West of Pennsylvania the suspended banks owed $108,000,000, while east of Ohio their liabilities were less than one-fifth of that amount.

The principle of co-operation has been vindicated afresh in this panic. The associated banks in clearing-house cities made common cause of the disaster, and not only protected each other and their customers, but proved a tower of strength to the whole banking system of our country. This group of skilled bankers bravely faced the storm and uttered no note of discouragement in the darkest hour. The New York bank reserves went down to $16,545,000 below the legal point, and currency payments were practically suspended, but each day at high noon this committee was in council keeping a brave heart and steadily guiding the banks of the whole country, conscious that a false step or failure might precipitate the suspension of gold payments by the Government and the collapse of the financial machinery of the land. The promptness with which the device of Clearing-house certificates was adopted was a most important check to the wave of disaster. The certificates were freely issued, and although on Sept. 23 there was a surplus of reserve of over $17,000,000 they were ungrudgingly continued and will be until the last sign of danger is past. The whole banking system of our country is likely to be reconstructed in the near future. No country should be punished by a system which, in times of panic, must find in itself, through its own devices, a way to supply the deficiencies of the law, and in doing so to defy the law. Such a time as we have just experienced shows that safety in banking may make the infraction of law a necessity. This is not a condition which bankers can tolerate. There are some legislators who cannot understand why impairing reserves and suspension of currency payments should not mean to a bank at any time instant dissolution, but practical experience enforces a lesson that must ultimately penetrate their intelligence that good banking keeps the financial machinery at work in time of great panic by cutting the knots of red tape, and that, when public safety requires it, there is a higher law, that of self-protection and the defense of sacred trusts, that dictates the conduct of great banking interests. The banking system that is not built to ride the storms of panic does not properly belong to this country or this age, and it becomes the duty of bankers in the United States to follow approaching legislation with a keen intent to see that the work of a lifetime and the accumulations of years of patient industry shall not, in the hour of a great shock to credit or of financial convulsions, be placed in special peril by reason of strangulation in the leading strings of narrow-minded regulation.

The essential soundness of commercial conditions in our Republic has been so demonstrated that, as Englishmen view the Argentina and Australian collapse, they will be disposed to await with impatience an opportunity to come back to us with their surplus capital. That hour will strike when our national finances are in line with the experience of all civilized nations. The stinging lesson of the panic of 1893 is an old one. It is simply that "honesty is the best policy."

E. O. Leech, ex-Director of the United States Mint, now a New York banker, read a paper on "The Silver Question, as Related to the Appreciation of Gold." He said:

He must be blind indeed who fails to see that the distrust, which was the main feature of the recent panic, had its birth in the silver policy of this country. Nothing short of a radical reversal of this policy will restore confidence and attract foreign investments. All foreign investors and the great mass of our own business people believe that it is not possible for this country to continue to absorb in its currency a depreciated and depreciating metal without resulting in placing our monetary system on a silver basis, where our paper dollars will represent only a promise to pay a silver dollar. This is the logical, practical, business reason for the distrust which has been created, and it is equally logical to say that it will not disappear until the cause is removed. In order to merit the confidence of the world and maintain our excellent credit and reputation as a country of the first class, we must maintain our monetary system above all question, with all our currency redeemable on demand in the money which civilized countries have decided to do business with—gold. The only way to do this is to go out of the silver business until such time as other commercial countries may find it for their interests to join with us in restoring silver to its former use as money. That the sober second thought of the American people is asserting itself and will compel such an action at the hands of their legislative representatives is beyond question.

Mr. Leech then discussed the claim that what appears to be a depreciation in the value of silver is really an appreciation in the value of gold, occasioned by its scarcity and by the disuse of silver as money. He cited statistics to show that there is more actual money and more silver money in use in the world to-day than ever before.

The product of silver for the past twenty years has aggregated over $2,400,000,000 in coining value; for the preceding period of twenty years it was only $948,000,000, and the coinage of silver for the last twenty years has aggregated the enormous sum of $2,300,000,000.

Regarding the fall in prices, Mr. Leech said:

Without going into individual articles it is sufficient to say that there is not one of the great staple commodities which has fallen largely in price where such decline cannot be readily traced to circumstances affecting the demand and supply of the article itself. To ascertain with accuracy whether or not there has been an appreciation in the value of the world's money, gold, it would be much fairer to take as a basis of comparison those things which have not been subjected to special causes of cheapening, and which are most quickly and naturally affected by the plenty or scarcity of money, viz.: interest and wages.

He read a table giving the annual averages of the rate of discount in the principal cities of Europe from 1885 to 1892, from which it appeared that "the rate of interest has been steadily lowered each year, which could not be the case if the amount of actual money had grown scarcer. The unanimous report on wages and prices by the Senate Committee on Finance, made after an exhaustive examination by a special committee of distinguished Senators, shows that the wage-earner to-day not only receives higher wages in every branch of industry than in prior years, but also that he can purchase more of the necessities of life with his wages than ever before."

Other papers were read by George E. Leighton of St. Louis on "The Need of Comprehensive Currency Reform," and James H. Tripp of Marthon, N. Y., on "Is the National Banking System of any Benefit to the Country, and Should It Be Preserved and Perpetuated?"

There were also papers by Joseph Johnson of Birmingham, Ala.; Frank C. Dillard of Sherman, Tex.; E. E. Lindemuth of Clearfield, Pa., and others. This evening a reception will be tendered the delegates and ladies at the Union League Club.

ANOTHER FAKE.

A Pointer for the Authorities.

It is our duty to warn the unwary public not to be deceived or robbed by traveling fake sales, who advertise $25 suits or overcoats for $2.99 or money refunded—which they never do. They only remain in a place three or four days—long enough to swindle you—and then vanish to parts unknown. Buy your goods of the Globe, northwest corner Franklin avenue and Seventh street, a reliable firm, which is in your midst, responsible and guarantees satisfaction or refunds your money.

Fair Association Election.

The resignation of Mr. Rolla Wells as President of the St. Louis Agricultural and Mechanical Association was accepted at a meeting of the Board of Directors held yesterday afternoon.

As the annual election takes place in December the Vice-President, Mr. L. M. Rumsey, will assume the duties of president until that time.

Upon retiring Mr. Wells delivered a farewell address in which he reviewed the history of the association and urged the continuance of the Fair in future years. The board then held an executive session to discuss the maturing indebtedness of the association. A committee of three was appointed to report on the matter at the next meeting.

It is expected that Gen. John W. Turner or ex-Gov. D. R. Francis will be the next president of the association.

SPECIAL SOLOISTS.

Several Extra Attractions at the Exposition This Evening.

SOUSA DISCUSSES THE COMPOSITIONS OF SIR ARTHUR SULLIVAN.

The General Public Only Knows the Eminent Englishman as a Writer of Comic Opera Music—His Best Works Overlooked—This Is Pythian Night—The Exposition Season Going Out in a Blaze of Glory.

The attendance at the Exposition to-night is expected to fully equal if not eclipse that of any previous day this season. In addition to the fact that the last illumination of the year will take place, a fact alone sufficient to insure a specially large attendance, to-day has been set apart as Pythian Day, and the knights of that order, with their elegant badges and resplendent uniforms, will turn out in full force. To-morrow night is society night, with Wagner music, and Saturday, the last night of the season, is St. Louis Exposition night.

In addition to Miss Leonora Van Stosch and Miss Alice Raymond, the regular soloists, the names of Mrs. Sale, a soprano of great ability, Mr. Percy Blanford Weston, a tenor, and Mr. Gwylm Miles, the well known baritone, will appear at to-night's concerts in solos. Mr. Weston is an English singer of considerable reputation, gained principally by his work with the Carl Rosa and the Gilbert and Sullivan opera companies. He has also appeared with the Rivier Promenade Concert Company, the Carlotta Patti Concert Company and at the Royal Albert Hall Oratorio Concerts. His musical studies were conducted under the best masters in London and Italy. Mrs. Lettie E. Crowl, the whistler, who has before delighted audiences at these concerts, will give a whistling solo at the third concert to-day.

Sousa is a great admirer of the work of Sir Arthur Sullivan, the eminent English composer. "It is a strange thing," he said while talking to a reporter last night, "that to the general public Sullivan is best known through his comic operas like the "Mikado," "Pinafore," "Patience" and many others. Now I consider his work in this line, excellent though it is, as secondary to many of his other compositions. You would probably be surprised if you knew how many people are ignorant of the fact that he is the author of "The Lost Chord," and the two oratorios, the "Prodigal Son" and the "Light of the World." There is one passage in the last named work which in my opinion is one of the most beautiful things in the world. It is that portion commencing, 'And God shall wipe away all tears.' It is sublime!"

"Have you noticed," the great bandmaster continued, "how the public taste is becoming educated to a true appreciation of the really finest music. With some audiences, but the lightest and catchiest of music seems to please. This was true, to a greater or less extent of a St. Louis audience when the Exposition opened this season. Now, however, it is changed, and now there is all the time a constant desire for the best works of the very best composers, a desire which is evinced in the greater applause which such selections evoke. That this is so is very gratifying and speaks volumes for the public appreciation of the work of the band."

An exceptionally large crowd attended the Exposition last night, and at the evening concerts the seating capacity of the Music Hall was tested to its utmost. Visitors to the saddlers' convention were all there and did more than their share toward making the day set apart for them a great success. The "Salute of the Nations," with the Columbian tableau, evoked tremendous applause. This piece with the tableau will be given again this evening.

AT THE THEATERS.

"The Knickerbockers" To-Night—Attractions to Be Presented Next Week.

The first presentation in this city of De Koven and Smith's new opera comique, "The Knickerbockers," will occur at the Grand Opera-house this evening.

The story treats of life in New Amsterdam during the governorship of Wilhelmus Kieft, commonly called William the Testy, and the incidents are two love affairs and a skirmish between the Dutch colonists and the Puritans of New England. Gov. William has a daughter, Katrina, who is loved by Miles Bradford, a Puritan captain. To visit his sweetheart Miles ventures into New Amsterdam in the face of danger. Once there his sympathies are enlisted by a British soldier, who is supposed to be a Puritan spy, and he aids this individual to escape from a crowd of Dutch sailors, thereby drawing upon his own head the wrath of all official New Amsterdam. However, he has a friend in Hendrick Schermerhorn, son of the burgomaster, who, with his sweetheart, Priscilla, a Puritan damsel, plans to send Miles out of danger in a gown of Priscilla's as a disguise. Antony Van Corlear, the Governor's trumpeter, overhears this plot and informs the Governor, who goes forth to arrest the spy. Of course he arrests Priscilla, and she, in order to give the friend of her betrothed time to escape, allows the error to go uncorrected. The Governor insists that she take on her own proper apparel, and poor Priscilla has to don male attire, much to her chagrin. In this guise numerous Dutch lassies fall in love with her, which makes her position all the more difficult. When the alarm of war comes in the announcement that the Puritan army is approaching, Priscilla, who all this time is supposed to be a dreadfully bloodthirsty British soldier, is pressed into service to lead the Dutch army, and many are the amusing complications growing out of this condition of things. However, the war is settled by an arbitration committee made up of two pairs of lovers, and the ending is happy.

Felix Morris begins a week's engagement at the Grand Opera-house, Sunday night. The programme offered includes frequent changes of bill and the introduction of two new plays. Mr. Morris will be seen in a broad range of roles. The company includes clever players. The opening bill Sunday will be "The Old Musician" and "Moses." Monday offers a complete change and again a change Wednesday and Thursday nights.

The well-known comedian, Henry E. Dixey, will appear next Sunday at the Olympic in "Adonis," as revived at the New York Casino, where it had a run of 100 nights. Dixey will present many new novelties, bright and catchy music, the latest popular songs and new characterizations, together with his old successes. "Adonis" has been brought up to date and will be presented in a new and brilliant dress. All the costumes and scenery are new and original and C. B. Jefferson, Klaw & Erlanger have everything complete to make this magnificent burlesque a success. The sale of seats opens to-day.

The clever comedienne, Bessie Bonehill, in the farce, "Playmates," will be the attraction at the Hagan next Sunday.

In London Miss Bonehill's services are in great demand. Miss Bonehill has become possessed of a keen desire to star in this country, and the offers of English gold seem to have but little effect. Her comedy, "Playmates," is reputed to be a work of merit, and with the excellent reports given of the great merit of the little lady by Al Hayman, Charles Frohman and others, who learned to admire her in London, her success in her new undertaking seems assured.

"The Prodigal Father," the comedy which met with remarkable success here last year, will be presented at Pope's on Sunday and during the week by Messrs. C. B. Jefferson, Klaw & Erlanger's Comedy Company. The merry antics of Stanley Dodge, the wicked old prodigal, who falls in love with a serio-comic singer, will no doubt arouse the audiences to roars of laughter. In addition to the comedy and an excellent cast, Messrs. Jefferson, Klaw & Erlanger have specially engaged the comic singer, Maggie Cline, who will be heard between the second and third acts of "The Prodigal Father," in her amusing songs, "Poor Mike," "The Musical Flats," "Don't You Think I'd Make a Statue," and "Throw Him Down, McClosky." The company which will be seen in the comedy includes Harry Hotto, George C. Boniface, Jr., J. J. Fitzsimmons, Cecil Kingstone, Frank Caldwell, George Gaston, Blanche Chapman Ford, Cora Macy, Marion Keith, Marguerite Franklin and Little Irene Franklin.

At Havlin's next week Sadie Hasson will appear in "A Kentucky Girl." This actress has long been a favorite in this city, and the play in which she will be seen is regarded as her best.

At the Standard Theater Harry Williams' own company is drawing large audiences. The attraction next week will be the Rooney Comedy Co.

An interesting entertainment comes off at Entertainment Hall next Tuesday evening, Oct. 24, when the English Hand Bell Ringers give a concert and reveal the wealth of music in bells. Miss Eva Bartlett Macey, who accompanies them, is said to be a wonderfully gifted lady, being a talented elocutionist and an expert on the banjo and piano. The programme for next Tuesday evening is a taking one.

The great military bands at the German village, which have been so popular with the crowds of World's Fair visitors, will give four concerts at Music Hall on Nov. 2, 3, 4, and St. Louis will have its first opportunity of hearing a style of music which led many a German army to victory, and bands which are rated as the best military bands of the German Empire.

AN ENCOURAGING SHOWING.

Post-Office Recipts Increasing—A Business Barometer.

That business is reviving is shown by the Post-office receipts. Up to June the percentage of increase over the business of last year was about 10 per cent a month. From June until the 1st of September there was not only no increase but a very sharp decline. Since September there has been a gradual improvement. The receipts of that month were only about 6 per cent less than those of the corresponding month last year, and this month it is expected that there will be no decrease at all, and probably an increase. It is a fact noted by all post-office officials that the post-office receipts furnish a most excellent business barometer and that the rise and decline of the prosperity of any section can be deduced with accuracy from the number of letters sent and received.

After Sheriff Staed.

Judge Rudolph Hirzell of the St. Louis County Circuit Court has frequently complained that Sheriff Pat Staed of St. Louis has either refused or neglected to arrest those for whom he has issued capiases. The failure to arrest Gregorie Aubuchon, who was indicted in Florissant in 1888 for selling liquor without a license, is one of the main causes of complaint. It is stated that four capiases have been issued, the last on May 18. One of Staed's deputies promised to produce him in court at the October term, but when the case was called he was not present. Judge Hirzell issued another capias yesterday and is determined to see that it is served.

Coroner Frank stated this morning that he would not hold an autopsy on the remains of Philip Pitzer, late Assistant Superintendent of the Morgue, despite the statement made by the woman who claims to be Mrs. Ella Pitzer to the effect that deceased told her before he died that he had partaken of poisoned beer. Dr. Charles N. Frank diagnosed the case as blood poisoning, superinduced by the prick of a needle while Pitzer was stitching up a dead body. Pitzer admitted having pricked his finger with the needle. The death certificate has been issued and the body will be interred to-morrow. Deceased resided at 705 North Thirteenth street.

Carondelet Jottings.

The case of John Wieland, a grocer at 7800 Ivory avenue, charged with selling liquor without a license, came up for trial in the Carondelet Police Court this morning. As the defendant had secured a license since the charge was made the case was dismissed on payment of costs by the defendant.

EAST ST. LOUIS.

John Griffin Held for a Daring Highway Robbery—Notes.

John Griffin was arrested by the police last night on the charge of highway robbery and was held for the Grand-jury to-day by Justice Wilson. William Ortgeier, a resident of Collinsville avenue, caused the arrest of Griffin. He claimed that he gave his son a gold watch to take home, and that Griffin followed the boy, struck him a blow on the head and rendered him unconscious and stole the watch. The police found the watch on Griffin's possession. At the hearing in Justice Wilson's Court Ortgeier stated that he was at the saloon and dance-hall of August Dittmer on Collinsville avenue, when he gave the watch to his son. He claimed that Griffin was in the place at the time and saw him hand it to the boy. Dittmer is the saloon-keeper who was an trial in Justice Healy's court when the trouble that culminated in the indictment of Sergt. Bowler and Officer Schubert occurred.

The saloon business in East St. Louis has been so affected by the hard times that a number of saloonkeepers have concluded to close their places. A score or more of them have failed to pay their license fees for the current quarter, and thirteen have notified the City Clerk that they will not require licenses, as they have decided to quit the business. The following are the names of those who have given Clerk Kane such notification: Messrs. Garrett Stock, Martin Paulins, McCurry & Reynolds, Mrs. O'Hara, Jacob Meier, J. W. McGlynn, F. J. Griedeman, Hughes & Knauss, J. H. Gleason, Louis Gross, William Connolly, Conrad Clarer, J. E. Donohue.

The East St. Louis police were notified to-day that James Williams, colored, who was arrested here recently after having broken out of the Kentucky branch penitentiary at Eddyville, had again escaped from that prison.

Coroner Campbell held an inquest yesterday to ascertain the cause of the death of August Vondine, who was shot at Pittsburg Lake. Nothing could be learned of the identity of the man who did the shooting, nor could the Coroner ascertain whether the shooting was accidental or otherwise.

Deputy Game Warden Charles Beedle arrested five men who were seining fish with a small seine yesterday. Two of the men, Fred Wachten and William Seton, were fined to-day and the others, Robert Hodges, Edward Latcher and Otto Schmidt, were released.

Samuel Asbury was arrested yesterday on the capias, the Grand-jury having indicted him for assaulting Louis Thoene a short time ago. Asbury and Thoene are both well known young men.

Capt. Mike Walsh, Chief of the East St. Louis Police Department, has been tendered the position of Deputy Warden at the Chester Penitentiary. He has fully considered the offer and decided to decline.

A concert for the benefit of the Summit Avenue M. E. Church will be given the first week in November.

Queen City Lodge, I. O. O. F., will give a ball the 29th inst. at Baughan's Hall.

Belleville.

Jacob Weber, a stranger in these parts, died yesterday at the County Farm, where he had been since last June. He was 56 years old. His death was sudden, being caused by heart failure. The man was a mysterious character. He never told anything about himself and it is supposed that he gave a fictitious name. There was nothing in his effects to give even a clew to the whereabouts of his relatives, if he had any.

The will of the late Rev. Harrison Thompson of Lebanon was set aside yesterday in the Circuit Court on the ground that the testator was of unsound mind. Rev. Thompson drowned himself about eighteen months ago. The bulk of his estate was bequeathed to his grandchildren, and the will was contested by the children of his first wife.

Frank Yachs, a well-known resident of Belleville, left yesterday for Springfield to be present at the initiation of his only daughter into the Order of the Sisters of Mercy. Miss Yachs took the veil to-day.

Marriage licenses were issued yesterday to Edward Hyatt and Emith Perkins of East St. Louis, Albert Barrett and Nellie O'Hare of Alma, B. Willis and Amelia Burnett of Lebanon, Wm. Johnson of St. Louis and Louisa Reeder of East St. Louis.

The will of the late Henry Brua was filed for probate late yesterday, but County Judge Boneau declined to approve it, as neither of the witnesses could identify the other's signature, they having signed at different times.

Charles Beck has returned from Milwaukee, where he attended the International Convention of Cigarmakers. He represented Local Union No. 250 at the convention.

Mrs. Annie Herman obtained a divorce from her husband, Henry Herman, yesterday, with leave to resume her maiden name.

John Herzler and Miss Mary Goering were married yesterday at St. Peter's Cathedral.

IT seems most probable that the missing express money package is in the hands of some Eastern citizen. The Eastern citizen is more of a financier than his Western fellow.

SENATOR TELLER does not want to surrender his convictions, but he is perfectly willing to have other people surrender theirs.

IN the matter of senatorial action on repeal the sentiment of the American people is well expressed in the exclamation of Hamlet to the player: "Leave off thy damnable faces and begin."

WHEN two members of the House come near thumping each other over a mere bridge bill it is not likely that the Representatives are watching with intensest interest the proceedings in the Senate.

HAS it come to pass in the State of Missouri that rich men may slay their neighbors and commit all manner of crimes, yet escape justice by compounding with the prosecution and buying out the law?

DECENT citizens will have to work hard if they are to secure decent nominations for School Directors in the party conventions. Several eminent reformers of the ward heeler type are very conspicuous in the preliminary arrangements on both sides.

IF the United States Court is disposed to to do a great public service it will find out the number, nature and extent of the unlawful arrangements made by the Union Pacific Railway Co. But the Reading case does not encourage any hope of such service.

PRESIDENT CLEVELAND'S practical repudiation of Judge Maynard in New York will be welcomed as an evidence that he still clings to his old ideas on decency in politics. Now if he will repudiate Van Alen and Olney he will recover all the ground he has lost.

THE gift of snake medicine which the President has received from a South American admirer comes most opportunely. The Democratic camp is afflicted with serpents of various kinds and some of the venom of the plutocratic reptile seems to have got into the presidential veins.

STRONG resolutions from the citizens of St. Louis assembled in mass-meeting demanding the repeal of the Sherman purchase act would be a fair rebuke of Senators Cockrell and Vest, and an effectual mode of bringing the pressure of public opinion to bear on the Senate. Let the mass-meeting movement be started in St. Louis.

THE effort of the Democratic silver men to get a caucus which shall relieve them of the responsibility for the disgraceful deadlock is the first indication of weakening among the would-be revolutionists. Energetic action by the repealers will put an end to the fight. Senator Voorhees and his followers can pass the Wilson bill if they try.

A PICTORIAL Republican organ publishes a cartoon representing Moses Cleveland leading the people of the United States to a promised land which turns out to be barren. It is a truthful picture. The promised land has been looted, all its milk and honey consumed and its resources laid waste by the party previously occupying it, from whose possession Moses and the people wrested it.

HOW NEARLY the gamblers have knocked out running races may be seen in some recent Kentucky figures. The average daily attendance at the Jockey Club races in Louisville was less than 600; that at the trotting races at Lexington was nearly 5,000. And the Jockey Club lost $3,500, not to mention that a "ringer" was run in on it. It is high time that adjournment to Mexico should be moved.

LET THE PEOPLE SPEAK.

The inaction of the Senate caused by the impotence of the majority and the obstruction of the minority has reached a point where it becomes a public outrage and a grave menace to the welfare of every citizen of the country.

Rightly or wrongly business waits upon the repeal of the purchase clause of the Sherman law. That is the condition which must be dealt with to bring relief. While Senators dawdle and jaw the country suffers. The promise of a revival of trade following the prompt action of the House is blighted by the hopeless delay of the Senate. Industry stagnates—commerce is sinking to the lowest ebb when it should be at high tide. Merchants and manufacturers are forced into idleness and the millions dependent upon their prosperous activity are feeling the cruel pinch of hard times. The farmers can only sell their produce at ruinous prices. If these conditions continue much longer the only sales will be sheriffs' sales and the only purchasers creditors.

The time has come for the people to take the matter in their hands and impress these conditions and their will upon the Senate in a way that will command attention and force action. The Senate has not heeded the voice of the press or the messages of commercial bodies in all parts of the country. Now let the people—the business men and the workers in all branches of industry—hold mass-meetings and let the Senate know that they demand prompt repeal.

St. Louis is in the best position to start the ball rolling. She has suffered as little as any other city in the Union and therefore, may speak for the mass and from high motives, not alone for herself and from special interests. She is the metropolis of the Mississippi Valley and the great Southwest. She represents both the South and the West, and the sentiments of her citizens are not represented in the Senate.

The POST-DISPATCH, therefore, urges the citizens of St. Louis, irrespective of party, to gather in mass-meeting and demand action of the Senate. Let them make it known that Senators Vest and Cockrell in obstructing repeal run counter to their sentiments. The energetic business men should take hold and make this mass-meeting a monster meeting, representative of all classes—such a meeting as was never held before in this city and whose voice will carry force and authority. Let it be done as soon as possible—the earlier the better.

MONEY POWER IN THE SENATE.

The confirmation of Van Alen, which now seems to be assured, will mark the presence in both party organizations of a large plutocratic element dangerous to American institutions and fatal to human liberty in the past, wherever it has secured a footing in politics.

The influence of money in American politics has long been known, but it has never been acknowledged by those who used it to advance their own fortunes and those of their clients. That is, it has been contended that the money used was for legitimate purposes and that campaign funds were not made up for the purposes of corruption, nor were contributions procured by promises of offices. But in the Van Alen case the mask has been thrown off. Not the most earnest protestations can alter the character of that transaction nor persuade the people that it was not a bargain tainted with dishonor. There have been few denials from the men who had a hand in it and these few are rather confessions of the substance while denying the form of dishonor. The facts are that Van Alen bought an office and the United States Senate is likely to ratify the bargain and deliver the goods.

It is likely to ratify, because the Senate contains men—perhaps they are a majority—who owe their political success to their wealth or their services to wealth. They form a compact body of faithful servants of special interests, resolute to defend their employers' privileges and bound to enlarge them at every opportunity. They are not politicians. Their party affiliations are largely matters of accident or locality. They have no convictions and no political ideas. Their purpose is to get more legislative favors for this or that manufacturing interest or railway or land syndicate. They know that to do this they must respect each other's wishes and stand by one another whenever danger threatens either. For these reasons they will stand by Van Alen, because he and his family are useful people to their friends. Plutocracy open and avowed is an active force in American politics. And it seems to have control of one branch of the American Government.

LICENSES TO COMMIT CRIME.

The Dosenbach case furnishes another example of the power of money and a political pull.

The guilt or innocence of Mr. Dosenbach has nothing to do with the question of his release. He may or may not have been guilty, and his sentence to six month in jail may or may not have been just. His release on payment to the county of his value as a laborer at $1.50 a day is a recognition of the right of any man with money or political influence to compound for his crime with money, and escape the penalty attached by the law to his misdeed. It is a return to the old German practice of blood money, whereby a murderer was permitted to purge himself by paying to the family of the victim a fixed sum supposed to represent his value as breadwinner or defender.

Introduced into civilized life it amounts to a license to commit any offense known to the law. A man with enough money is granted the privilege to adopt crime as a profession, if he is so disposed, and go scot free no matter how great his offenses may be. This is the natural, logical conclusion to be drawn from the Dosenbach case, for a precedent only initiates a practice and practice becomes a rule of law.

The possibility of such trifling with justice would not be conceded if it were not for this case which upsets all our ideas concerning the nature of crime and punishment. The power of money has never before manifested itself so impudently. Political pulls have never before been employed so unblushingly. The two go together, as a rule, but they cannot go further than they have in this most astonishing proceeding. In future the criminal need only put money in his purse, accept sentence and then strike a bargain with the managers of political factions. This is practically what we are to expect, if Dosenbach's release is allowed to pass unchallenged.

FLANAGAN'S FLOP.

The Hon. Webster Flanagan drew the gaze of the country when he suddenly asked, in a National Convention of his party, "What are we here for?" But the Hon. Webster has now really astounded us by unexpectedly appearing in the role of a free-trader. Imagine the dismay of Mr. McKinley and Mr. Harrison on learning that this supposed stanch supporter of our infant industries has flopped!

We should be inclined to receive as an idle rumor the telegram which gives us the story of Mr. Flanagan's defection at a time when it is so necessary to show that the dull times have been brought on by apprehension that no more boodle would be distributed among the manufacturers and wool-growers by Uncle Samuel, if it were not for the fact that the intelligence comes coupled with the information that Mr. Flanagan has been indicted—as he very properly should be if he is guilty—for a conspiracy against the high-tariff laws. It is hardly possible that so prominent a man as Mr. Flanagan would have been indicted on a mere rumor, heinous as the offense alleged against him is admitted to be.

Let us be plain: Mr. Flanagan has been discovered in the act of passing, free of duty, various and sundry sheep of Mexican origin, to the great depression of American agriculture and the ultimate destruction of our entire industrial system. In thus attempting to pull the wool over the eyes of his party and his country at the same time Mr. Flanagan has sinned so deeply that it will be difficult for even a federal court to find in any statute a punishment adequate to the crime.

Perhaps Mr. Harrison and Mr. McKinley should be called in consultation by the court to assist in determining exactly what should be done with Mr. Flanagan.

THE kisses which the women of France are showering on the rough sailors of Russia are not kisses of peace. The maudlin rapture with which Frenchmen embrace their Russian visitors is not prompted by affection pure and unalloyed. It is the sweet hope of revenge which gives fervor to the French kiss and the French hug, and the frenzy of the rejoicings over the Russian fleet is the frenzy of the Gallic spirit of war and glory. Nothing has given Europe more disquiet than the enthusiastic demonstration of affection between France and Russia. Europe knows what it means. It recognizes in French ardor the burning desire to get at the throat of Germany and the thirst for regained glory which will make the first gleam of hope the signal for war. Europe, therefore, trembles over the festivities of Paris.

THE crew of the Chicago & Alton train, which passed by the wrecked Wabash train without offering help, is not exonerated from heartlessness by the explanation issued from headquarters. That explanation reflects on the management putting it forward, more than it aids the crew in clearing itself of blame. To say that the conductor was not asked for help and therefore did not offer it is weak defense. The sight and signal of distress should have been sufficient to prompt humane men to lend a helping hand. It is a lame plea.

THE release of a prisoner convicted of manslaughter and sentenced to six months in jail on payment to St. Charles County of the worth of his labor for that time at $1.50 a day, is the astonishing conclusion of a most remarkable case. If this is to be accepted as a precedent murderers with money enough can murder with impunity, for if the penalty for manslaughter can be compounded ingenuity will soon find a way for wealthy malefactors to buy the privilege to commit any crime whenever the fit takes them.

THERE is great tribulation among Kentucky whisky manufacturers, the supply of their product exceeding the demand. The Louisville Times says: 'Kentucky distillers can no more agree to shut down on the manufacture of 'goods' than consumers of 'bads' can be induced to shut up. Their invariable rule has been, and will continue to be, to go on glutting the glutted market and in their extremity appeal to Congress, the banks and the trade for relief. Perhaps whisky-making, like whisky-drinking, sometimes reaches a point where it ceases to be a habit and becomes a disease.' This idea of whisky-making being a disease is rather alarming. Dr. Keeley has no bichloride of any sort that will do a distiller any good.

ST. LOUIS must not get the Bartholdi statue of Washington and Lafayette, though we have to mortgage the City Hall to keep it in this city. There are some humiliations too deep to be borne.—[Chicago Herald.

St. Louis has not the least desire to get in the way of Chicago's art ambition. We have a full supply of statuary, and might even lend the Windy some of it if approached in a neighborly manner. It may be doubted whether a statue of Washington and Lafayette would prove an artistic triumph, but if Chicago wants it and will pay for it herself, no dissenting voice will be raised in this quarter.

SENORITA ESMERALDA CERVANTES testifies that the instruction and development of Turkish ladies are not in the least inferior to the education of our own intelligent women. Sultan Abdul-Hamid, she says, has a wide and developed mind, and through his generosity Turkish feminine education has made marvelous progress. If this is true it is high time that Christian writers and talkers had ceased to make harem-scarem statements concerning the women of the Orient.

HAPPY young man of Memphis! Had he not been in the railroad smashup the pretty Texas girl would never have wrapped up his bleeding head in a piece torn from her petticoat. No Compromise.

From the New York WORLD.

The brave and hopeful word still comes from Washington that the majority stands, and will stand to the end, for its right to rule, which implies and requires the right to vote.

As the WORLD'S Washington dispatches have from the first said, unconditional repeal is stronger than any compromise.

The people demand straight repeal. The House has voted straight repeal. A majority of the Senate favors straight repeal. What room is there for a crooked compromise?

Furthermore the foundation principle of popular government is involved. To compromise the right of the majority to rule is disloyalty to the government. Opposition to compromise is resistance to revolution.

Great Shots at Sandy Hook.

From the Boston Globe.

Between the races Uncle Samuel had a little fun all to himself at Sandy Hook the other day, shooting off terrible guns.

The sport lasted several hours and 8 and 10-inch projectiles were sent through 11¼-inch plate as though it were cheese.

But the fun cost the Government a nice little penny. Every shot at the 11¼-inch plate cost $4,189, and the 9-inch plate $2,163. Other shots cost from $1,200 apiece down to $700.

While this fun was going on scores of Christian men and women were canvassing New York for bread for the poor, and a newspaper that reported the show had an appeal to citizens for loaves of bread in a neighboring column.

Tests are all right, of course, but then many good people cannot quite help drawing a moral from such costly experiments.

A Kick.

From the Pittsburg Dispatch (Rep.).

Senator Cameron admits that a majority of people of Pennsylvania favor unconditional repeal of the Sherman silver act, but defends his position by saying that they have not given the question proper consideration. Statements of this kind by the senior Senator will only have the effect of increasing the general indignation that is felt all over the State at the course he has taken. There are thousands and thousands of men in Pennsylvania whose opinions are much more valuable than those of Senator Cameron on almost any subject, who favor unconditional repeal, and it should occur to him that their desires are worthy of some slight consideration on this occasion.

Rights of the President.

From the Buffalo Courier.

The Constitution of the United States declares that the President "shall from time to time give to the Congress information of the state of the Union and recommend to their consideration such measures as he shall judge necessary and expedient." Yet there are Senators who appear to think that he should suppress his opinions and permit them to do all the talking and criticising and recommending. The President of the United States has a large constituency that has a right to be heard through him regarding public affairs, Senators to the contrary notwithstanding.

THE PEOPLE'S FORUM.

[All matter printed in this column must be written on one side of the paper.]

The Federal Judiciary.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Every Democrat and every lover of liberty should feel a deep concern on account of the encroachments of federal power, as exampled in the imprisonment of the County Court Judges of St. Clair County by the mandate of the Judges of the United States District Court for the Western District of this State, for their failure or refusal to levy a tax on the people of their county to pay fraudulent bonds. It is high time that there should be an awakening among the people upon this important subject, and we are confident that when the people fully understand the imminent danger which threatens their liberties in these encroachments by the federal judiciary, they will compel some sort of legislation for the better security of their rights. The action of federal courts during the last twenty-five years has not been such as to inspire any great amount of confidence in them as the conservators and guardians of the rights, interests and liberties of the people.

On the contrary, it has been such as to, in a great measure, justify the opinions and fears expressed by the great apostle of Democracy, Thomas Jefferson, more than seventy years ago. At that early day, only thirty-five years after the adoption of the constitution, Mr. Jefferson foresaw and foretold the dangerous tendencies of the United States Supreme Court. In a letter to William T. Barry, dated July 2, 1822, he wrote:

"We already see the power (the Supreme Court) installed for life, responsible to no authority (for impeachment is not even a scare-crow), advancing with a noiseless and steady pace to the great object of consolidation. The foundations are already deeply laid by their decisions, for the annihilation of constitutional State rights, and the removal of every check, every counterpoise to the engulfing power of which themselves are to make a sovereign part. If ever this vast country is brought under a single government it will be one of the most extensive corruption, indifferent and incapable of a wholesome care over so wide a spread of surface. This will not be borne, and you will have to choose between reformation and revolution. If I know the spirit of this country, the one or the other is inevitable."

In the light of this opinion, written three-quarters of a century ago, what would the great exemplar of Democracy say to-day, with the record of the Supreme Court before him since 1860, and the record which is being made by the federal courts in this State as collection agencies for the holders of fraudulent and illegal bonds?

H. MARTIN WILLIAMS.

The Dosenbach Case.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Ex-Sheriff Dosenbach to all intents and purposes is a free man. In the month of June, 1892, Sheriff Dosenbach shot and instantly killed Maj. Smith over a political quarrel in the Probate Court-room at Clayton, St. Louis Co., Mo. In due course of time his trial was called and taken on a change of venue to St. Charles, where he was tried for murder in the second degree and was convicted of manslaughter in the fourth degree, his punishment being assessed at six months in jail and a fine of $500. Being dissatisfied with the verdict he took an appeal to the Supreme Court and here the judgment of the lower court was sustained. In the meantime he was released on bond and took a trip to Germany. Some time last week the officers of the County Court authorized Sheriff Steiner to utilize the work of all prisoners at the rate of $1.50 per day. Here is where Dosenbach saw an opportunity and took advantage of it. He paid Sheriff Steiner the sum of $1,460, of which $600 was for his fine, $690 for the costs, and $370 for his six months' labor. It thus happens that he does not have to serve any time in jail and virtually has paid his way out. This action on the part of the authorities is being severely criticised and justly so. Should this manner of disposing of criminal cases establish a precedent, then only those who are so unfortunate as to be without means will be required to actually serve out sentences. Thus ends a criminal case which interested St. Louisans for months.

Selling Offices.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

For the past few years Mr. Cleveland has been looked upon as a growing man and he has not disappointed his admirers. Since his election he has grown amazingly, but in a manner altogether unexpected by his friends and supporters.

The nomination of James John Van Alen—the individual who distinguished himself by living abroad, by voting three times, by paying taxes once and by contributing $50,000 to the Democratic boodle campaign fund, when friends were few and calls "were great"—indicate that Mr. Cleveland's bump of plutocracy has developed at a most remarkable rate and that his Democracy is not as sound as of yore. When—for value received—the Saintly John was appointed Postmaster-General Mr. Cleveland was one of the first to denounce the act as dishonest, unpatriotic, unpolitic and disgraceful. The difference between the two cases is so little that even Mr. Whitney is unable to point out the distinction.

Unless the name of James John Van Alen, the alien American, is withdrawn, the people of this country will naturally come to the conclusion that the present federal Administration is inclined to favor the buying and the selling of federal offices, and they will also believe that the Astor family has a first-class cinch mortgage on the Italian mission.

Once assured of this the voters will not hesitate to use their ballots in a manner at once perplexing and wonderful to behold—from a Democratic point of view.

Where His Pull Came In.

THE WHAT-NOT CORNER.

Isn't This Pretty?

This hat is of biscuit embroidered and perforated felt, trimmed with black ostrich feathers, bows of wide black ribbon velvet and a paste buckle.

A Crepe de Chine Dancing Dress.

This is a dancing dress of white accordion-plaited crepe de chine, with a fancy black border round the bottom of the skirt. The bodice is very ornate. It has a sash of black velvet richly embroidered in gold, and a sort of collar almost as deep as a yoke of the same material, but still more elaborately embroidered.

Bread Pudding.

Scald one pint of milk. Take from the fire, add one cup of stale bread crumbs and soak until the milk has cooled. Beat the yolks of three eggs and two-thirds of a cup of sugar together until light; then add to the crumbs and milk with one tablespoonful of melted butter. Add one tablespoonful of vanilla, turn into a greased pudding dish and bake in a moderate oven for half an hour.

Make a meringue of the whites of the eggs and four tablespoonfuls of the powdered sugar. When the pudding is baked take from the oven and spread with a thin layer of the frosting or meringue. Cover the top with preserves or jelly, put the meringue on this and brown in a quick oven. Serve cold with or without sauce.

Stylish for Dress Occasions.

A pretty evening bonnet, which could be easily made at home, is here pictured. The low, close-fitting crown is covered with black satin. Outlining the edge are two rows of gayly colored beads, while very near the front is a rosette of pale pink and blue baby ribbon. Brocaded ribbon in blue, with the design in palest pink, is arranged in three erect loops in the back. The narrow tie strings are of pink velvet on one side and blue on the other. The bonnet is very chic and Frenchy in effect.

House Toilet.

Of blue cloth trimmed with plum satin ribbon. Puffed bodice running in under a very high sash formed by several rows of satin ribbon. Square bertha of satin ribbon confines the gathers of the bodice. Full puffed sleeves at the top of the arm falling down on a long satin cuff, which is fastened with a row of buttons. Round cloth skirt, slightly drawn up at the hips. The skirt is trimmed with satin bands intercepting it all along.

Quince Apple Sauce.

Quinces and apples are prime, plentiful and cheap. For the best sweet sauce that ever went to a breakfast or tea table use one quince to every three apples. Pare, core and quarter the fruit and put the quinces in the stewpan first, as they require more cooking than the apples. There is a great deal of sugar and nectar in the quince and the flavor given sour apples is very fine. This sauce is delicious with cold meat, bread and butter; served hot with rice, tapioca, custard or steamed biscuits, it makes a wholesome and satisfactory dinner dessert.

HIS SON'S CRIME.

A CLEVER TRICK BY WHICH A FORTUNE WAS LOST AND REGAINED.

It was my first circuit in the employment of Hinde & Cooper, wholesale jewellers and silversmiths of Birmingham. My round was an extensive one—from Stirling, on the edge of the Scottish Highlands, to Inverness, in the north. I made the round twice a year, in April and October, traveling with samples and collecting accounts. My turnout consisted of a horse and trap—"machine" they call it in the north—and I made the journey in short stages, and altogether found the work very pleasant and enjoyable.

"Can I see Mr. Macgregor?" I asked a shopman as I drew up at the door of an obviously flourishing establishment in the High street of Stirling.

"Mr. Macgregor's not in himself. Who is it that's asking for him?"

"Turner, from Hinde & Cooper, Birmingham."

I entered the shop. A man, half gentleman farmer, half jockey, was standing at the counter making some purchase. An elderly man came forward to address me.

"What's come of Naismith?" he asked.

Naismith was my predecessor on the round, but advancing years had rendered his removal to a less laborious one expedient. I explained as much to my interrogator.

"Mr. Macgregor was anxious to see you himself, I know, but he has had to go to Edinburgh. He said I was to go for young Macgregor if you called before his return."

"Oh, very well!"

On the entry of young Mr. Macgregor, as every one called him, we adjourned to a little room behind the shop, separated from it by a glass partition, the view through which was only partially obscured by a number of silver and plated goods arranged on shelves.

Our business was soon transacted. Mr. Macgregor handed me a roll of notes of the British Linen Co.'s bank, some £800 in all, which I counted and found correct. The foreman, who had been attending to the horsy individual I have already referred to, handed me a fresh order in his master's handwriting. I was pleased to see it was a large one, and highly satisfied with the business of the day proceeded to my hotel.

I had a good dinner and was just on the point of retiring to my room when there was a knock at the outer door, and a few moments after the waiter looked in, saying:

"A gentleman to see you, sir."

"Show the gentleman in."

But he did not require showing in.

"Mr. Turner, I am glad to have been able to meet you," he said.

"Yes?" I replied, interrogatively, for I had no idea who he was.

"My name's Macgregor—Macgregor of Stirling. Your principals know me well."

"I assure you I am glad to see you," I replied, now shaking his hand in turn, "your name is a familiar one in our house, but," observing his emotion, "I hope there's nothing wrong?"

"I hope not, my young friend," he replied, "at least nothing but what can be amended, I hope. May I ask if you have sent off the notes you got from my son to-day?"

"No, I shall wait till I reach Edinburg," I said.

"Thank heaven!" he fervently ejaculated and then burst into a loud fit of sobbing, the tears running down his cheeks and over his venerable beard.

It seemed that for some months past a large number of forged notes, purporting to be genuine drafts on the British Linen Co.'s bank, had been in circulation, and people were somewhat chary about receiving any without the most careful examination. When I heard this my hand moved instinctively to my breast pocket.

"Wait a moment, Mr. Turner," said the old gentleman. "My son, who was as steady and promising a young man as you'll find in all the Lothians and Stirlingshire, too, has lately given way to drink and horse racing and gambling. I have been suspecting for some time that his money matters were not in the best of order, and I don't like the look of his associates, especially at Tryst times."

Here I recalled the individual I had myself seen in the shop, but had not noticed any communication between him and young Macgregor.

"To make a long story short," resumed the worthy old man, "my foreman apprised me as soon as I got home that my son had duly paid you, but not with the notes he knew I had left for that purpose. I left him Bank of England notes. If he has paid you in that money no harm is done, but"—

"No, he has not," I said, becoming almost as agitated as my old friend himself.

"Oh, don't say they were British Linen!"

By this time I had my pocketbook out and handed him one of the roll of notes his precious son had given me.

Macgregor examined it carefully.

"It seems all right, I am thankful to say," he remarked. Then holding it between him and the light on the table:

"It's a forgery. The watermark's wrong!"

One by one we examined the roll. The watermark in all was identical, and consequently all were as bad as the first.

Again the old man broke down, and my own heart was in my mouth, I can tell you. At last, to my intense relief, pulling his pocketbook from his pocket, he said:

"Mr. Turner, only you and I know of the crime my wretched son has committed. His fate, and mine, too, I may say, are in your hands. Will you give me those notes for genuine ones? I have them here in my hand. I will send my son out of the country. He richly deserves prosecution, but let me beg of you to have pity, not upon him, but upon me."

I was really thankful to be able to oblige old Macgregor.

I drove in to Edinbugh next morning. I left the horse and trap at the livery stable Naismith had been in the habit of using and betook myself to a hotel in Prince street. Thence I wrote to my principals, inclosing the notes that now seemed doubly precious. I retained one of £10, as I had still a day or two to spend in town before my return to Birmingham.

I was trying to solace myself with the view of the Waverly Monument, just in front of the hotel, when I heard some one enter the room. I knew by the step it was not the waiter, so I did not turn my head. The party, whoever it was, however, came up to me, and touching me on the shoulder, said:

"Will you be good enough to come this way?"

"No, I can't; I shall be too late for my train as it is."

"Your train will have to wait some time."

"What do you mean, and who are you?"

"Dinna craw so crouse." He meant: "Don't crow so loudly." "It means that I'm a detective, and you must go with me to the police office."

It was useless to resist.

"Anything you say may be used in evidence against you," he warned.

On our way to the station he told me that my £10 note was a forgery; that others of a similar kind had been in circulation, and that suspicion pointed to me as one of the gang uttering them.

On the fifth day of my incarceration I was told that some one had called to see me. In a waiting-room I found Mr. Hinde young Mr. Macgregor and an old gentleman whom I did not know. He turned out to be the young man's real father, not the venerable swindler of Linlithgow.

Two days after I again appeared in the dock, and to my great satisfaction there stood in it also the old gentleman whose acquaintance I had made at Linlithgow and the horsy man I had seen in Macgregor's shop. My venerable old friend had dispensed with his beard and wig. They had served their turn.

I was discharged from custody and called upon to give evidence.

Along with the other two, they were sentenced to fourteen years' penal servitude each. Since then I do not allow sentiment to come in the way of business.

DEATH BY CHOKING.

Fatal Result of the Carelessness of a Surgeon's Assistant.

PATRICK KANALEY DIES IN GREAT AGONY FROM STRANGULATION.

A Surgeon's Sponge Allowed to Slip Down His Throat While the Unfortunate Man Was Undergoing an Operation—Unavailing Efforts to Remove It—Killed by a Cave In—Casualties.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Oct. 19.—Patrick Kanaley of Jordan died on the operating table at St. Joseph's Hospital here to-day, not from the surgeon's knife, but by being choked to death with a sponge which was being used by an assistant to keep the mucus from Kanaley's throat. The man died in great agony. His friends immediately applied to Coroner C. S. Roberts for an investigation.

Kanaley came to Syracuse to be operated upon for a perforating ulcer of the left heel. It was decided by Dr. D. M. Tolman and the hospital physicians to take the leg off at the ankle. The patient had been put under the influence of anæsthetics and Dr. Tolman was performing the operation. An attendant had been instructed to swab out the man's throat, that had filled with mucus. In some way the sponge got loose and Kanaley drew it into his throat with the next inspiration. He began to choke to death. An attempt was made to extract the sponge. Instead of the desired result it went still further down. It was decided that tracheotomy was the only means to save the man's life. It was of no use. He had choked to death before the sponge was taken out. The case has aroused much interest among the medical profession.

THE BUILDING COLLAPSED.

HOPKINSVILLE, Ky., Oct. 19.—At 9 o'clock this morning the building occupied by the Blumenstiel Carriage Manufacturing Co. of this city collapsed, killing one man and in all probability fatally wounding two others. The building was under repairs, the roof had been taken off and the brick of the upper walls had been piled on the floor of the second story. The weight of them caused the collapse.

JOHN WARNER, a bricklayer from Nashville, Tenn., was instantly killed.

CHARLES DAVIS, from Clarksville, had both legs broken and sustained internal injuries from which he will die.

AN UNKNOWN man was also fatally hurt.

Several other workmen sustained injuries more or less serious.

CABLE CARS DERAILED.

CHICAGO, Ill., Oct. 19.—There was a bad tangle of the West Chicago cable trains at the corner of Washington street and Fifth avenue to-day. Eleven cars were derailed and distributed at various angles across the tracks. As the cars were crowded with passengers a considerable panic ensued. Several of the car platforms were badly mashed. One car was thrown bodily on the sidewalk in front of the Times building. The blockade lasted for an hour. A number of passengers were slightly bruised, but no one seriously injured. The accident was caused by a strand of the Madison street cable wrapping around a grip.

CAUSE OF THE WRECK.

MANHATTAN, Kan., Oct. 19.—The coroner's jury investigating the cause of the wreck on Oct. 7 on the Rock Island Road at Keats, Kan., has returned a verdict. It will be remembered that Mail Agent Lancaster was killed in the wreck. The verdict states:

"The management of the railway company is censurable in overtaxing an insufficient number of employes. The service exacted of them cannot be performed with safety to the public and the company itself, and the accident and death resulted from the above reason."

KILLED BY A CAVE-IN.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Oct. 19.—By the caving in of a trench at the Homestead Steel Works at 7 o'clock this morning two men were killed outright and five others injured, one of them fatally. The dead are: Andrew Dursk; John McManus.

The names of the injured could not be learned, as they were taken to their homes. One man had his skull fractured and was injured internally. His arms and legs were also broken. He will die. The others will recover.

FREIGHT TRAIN WRECKED.

OMAHA, Neb., Oct. 19.—A freight train was wrecked on the Chicago & Northwestern this morning, but no one was hurt and little damage done. The debris was at once cleared away and trains are now running regularly.

LEG CUT OFF.

WEST PLAINS, Mo., Oct. 19.—W. Judd had one of his legs amputated by a moving train at Thayer. He was an employe of the road and was crawling under the cars.

ENTIRE VILLAGES DESTROYED.

GUADALAJARA, Mexico, Oct. 19.—The number of lives lost in the storm which recently swept along the Pacific Coast is now placed at 150. Entire villages were destroyed.

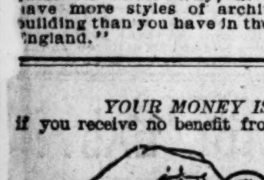
Kansas Architecture.

From Vogue.

From Boston: "I understand you have made great improvements in your architecture in the West?"

In the Hammock: "Improvements; well I guess we have? Why, at Kansas City we have more styles of architecture in one building than you have in the whole of New England."

YOUR MONEY IS RETURNED



if you receive no benefit from Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. This fair and business-like offer is held out to all women who suffer from the diseases and derangements peculiar to their sex. To weakly womanhood no prize could be more secure, nor the benefit more lasting, than that to be derived from the purchase of a bottle of this famous "Prescription." Its success in curing all the functional derangements, painful disorders, and chronic weaknesses of women warrants its makers in guaranteeing it. What this medicine has done for thousands of delicate women, it will do for you. At the two critical periods in woman's life, the change from girlhood to womanhood, and, later, the "change of life," it's an invaluable tonic and a soothing nervine, which can produce only good results. It cures cases of nervous prostration, insomnia, or inability to sleep, and many nervous disorders due to derangement of the functions.

THE FOURTH STREET ENTRANCE.

Its Abolition or Retention Exciting Much Discussion on 'Change.

The question of closing or retaining the Fourth street entrance is being actively discussed on the floor of the Merchants' Exchange. A vote on this has been ordered for Nov. 2, and it is the general opinion that it will be carried. Some of those who are opposed to the closing of the entrance are endeavoring to secure an indefinite postponement of the vote. A proposition of this kind will be brought before the next meeting of the board, and the directors were being buttonholed to-day by advocates of each course. Those who favored the retention of the present entrance argued that it is a convenience, and that very probably a company would be formed, which would construct a handsome arcade. Those who wished the entrance closed argued that the more convenient the entrance the worse it would be for the Exchange. The significant fact was pointed out that the property owners on Fourth street were actively working to prevent the closing of the entrance. It is urged that if it were made as convenient to enter the Merchants' Exchange by way of Fourth street, as by way of Third, Pine or Chestnut street, merchants doing business on the floor would have offices on Fourth street. But the Exchange does not own a foot of ground on that thoroughfare, its interest being entirely on the other streets named. Many argue that it would be a peculiar method of doing business to allow an entrance to exist which offered inducements to tenants of the Exchange to leave the building. Others hold that no improvement is likely to be made in the present passageway, until it is closed up, when those interested in its preservation will take steps to give the Exchange a better one. The fight promises to be hot.

The Shah's Cat.

The Shah of Persia has a great affection for cats and is so fond of them that he has some fifty feline favorites which are generally to be found in his apartments, and to which he has assigned officials and attendants of their own. They also have their own special room where they assemble at certain hours to have their meals. On his summer excursions they all accompany him, being carried by special men on horseback in cages lined with velvet. The favorite of the lot used to be a large gray cat called Babr Khan, which may be translated as Prince Tering.

When the Shah lunched or dined, Babr Khan was always let into the room, and sometimes his majesty fed the cat with his own exalted hands. Once, while in camp, Babr Khan disappeared, and was searched for in vain. A servant who had made fun of the cat and been heard to remark that it was better out of the way was arrested on suspicion of having caused the animal's disappearance. He was carried to Teheran in chains, flung into a dungeon, and was never heard of again. Nor was the cat.

They Read by Pictures.

From the New York Times.

The common people of Russia as a rule speak only their own tongue. A large proportion of them cannot read the bewildering characters—Roman, Greek and composite—which form their alphabet, and to help their ignorance the shop walls are covered over with rudely painted pictures of articles for sale within. The butcher's shop has a picture of meats of all sorts and shapes. The tailor's walls are covered with paintings of coats and trousers. The pills of the apothecary and the vegetables of the green grocer are advertised by pictures upon the doors and windows of their stores.

BURGLARS' TOOLS.

Where Do Safe-Thieves Get Their Well-Furnished Kits?

From the Boston Globe.

Every little while the police arrest a man with a kit of burglars' tools in his possession and one naturally wonders where they all come from. It is easy to buy a gun of any description, and the most reputable citizen would not be ashamed to be seen purchasing the most wicked-looking knife ever made; but who would know where to get a slung-shot or a jimmie or a device for drilling into a safe or any of the many tools used by the professional burglar in the pursuit of his calling? There probably are places in many large cities where these things are made and sold to the users, but such places are scarce. Once in a while the police find such a factory, and then things go hard with the proprietors. It may seem a little strange to learn that most of the tools used in burglaries are made by mechanics who are looked upon as respectable men in the community.

When a burglar wants any particular tool made he goes to a mechanic who can do the job, and pays him perhaps five times what it is actually worth for making the tool and keeping still about it. Supt. Elbridge of the Police Department recalls many cases of this kind that have come to light in Boston. One in particular occurred three years ago when an escaped convict named Williams went to a blacksmith in Roxbury and got him to make a lot of drills to be used in safe-cracking. He personally superintended the tempering of the steel, and when the job was nearly completed it leaked out and Williams was arrested. In this instance the blacksmith knew nothing of the use to which the tools were to be put, and escaped punishment. In the opinion of Supt. Elbridge most of the tools used by burglars are secured in this way. The only regular establishments where they were made ever discovered in Boston was at the West End. This was years ago, and the place was soon broken up.

How Paris Utilizes Rats.

From the Philadelphia Press.

Almost everywhere in the world, except in Paris, rats are considered as a troublesome nuisance, to be gotten rid of by any means possible. The Parisians, on the contrary, convert this nuisance into a useful member of society and a source of revenue. In Paris rats are collected from every possible source and placed in a great pound, where the carcasses of all animals dying in the city are thrown. These remains are speedily disposed of by the rats, which leave behind nothing but the cleanly picked bones. There are no such scavengers as rats. Four times a year these rats are rounded up and killed, and their skins are utilized in the everywhere admired form of gant de Paris, to decorate the hands of loveliness the world over.

More Exciting.

From Harper's Magazine.

"That is a picture of the old Puritans going to church, Bobby," said Mr. Norris, impressively. "Here you see them tramping through the snow in single file, every man with his gun thrown over his shoulder, ready for instant use in case of an attack."

"What did they have to carry guns for?" asked Bobby, with interest.

"To keep off the Indians," replied Mr. Norris. "That is the kind of men that built up this country. Not the bitterest cold, nor the heaviest snow, nor the fact that they went in extreme peril of their lives, could prevent them from performing their religious duties. Just think of our sturdy, pious forefathers when you don't feel like going to church, and remember the hardships they endured to enjoy the privilege of worshiping on Sunday, a privilege which I am afraid you are inclined to hold too lightly."

"Pooh!" observed Bobby, "I'd go to church every day in the week if I could get a shot at an Indian on the way."

THE MAN FOR YOU!

The Best of Friends.

Weep not for those who turn aside,
When fortune frowns again;
Keep up your courage and your pride
And learn this new refrain:
Take heart and comfort in the fact
That one good friend is left,
While our McNichol lives to act,
No soul will be bereft.

No shallow sympathy prevails,
When hard luck strikes the spot;
No grasp of hand or twice-told tales
Can change a bitter lot.
But he is here who says to come,
Select the goods you lack;
Without the cash, he'll make your home,
And stand fast at your back.

Wait not for wealth to give you power,
But seize the present time;
There's no occasion like this hour,
So harken to this rhyme.
McNichol dulls the widow's woes,
The poor man gladdens too;
From him each mortal, happy goes,
His fortunes gilded new.

The home he makes for you is fine,
His furniture's the best,
He sells the finest in his line
By all this is confessed;
So simple too his generous plan
Installment, by the week,
That all can buy; child, woman, man,
No further need they seek.

And what a comfort to have a home of one's own. Not to pay down a big sum, but a little each week to

Close of the Long and Busy Life of a Famous Woman.

STRUGGLE IN HER EARLY YEARS TO OBTAIN AN EDUCATION.

Espousal of the Anti-Slavery Cause and Good Work Done in the Abolition Movement—She Was the First to Raise the Banner for Woman's Suffrage—Her Marriage and Domestic Life.

BOSTON, Mass., Oct. 19.—Lucy Stone, the famous champion of woman's suffrage and the cause of temperance, died at her home in Dorchester last night. She had been in failing health for some time and her advanced age proved a bar to her recovery.

Lucy Stone.

Lucy Stone was born in 1818 on a farm in West Brookfield, Mass. Her mother sighed on being told that the baby was a girl and said: "Oh, I am sorry. A woman's life is so hard."

When her father sent her brother to college, Lucy also wished to go. "Is she crazy?" he asked his wife. This was some fifty years ago. To be a woman then meant to sew, to spin and weave, to cook, perhaps to teach school, and, of course, to fulfill her allotted destiny and become a wife and mother.

Mr. Stone would have nothing to do with sending a girl to college. Nevertheless, Lucy was determined to go. She picked berries and chestnuts and sold them to buy books. She taught school, studying during the time and saving her money to the great end. At the wages then paid women teachers, it took her until she was 25 to earn sufficient to carry her to Oberlin—the only college that would receive her. She made the journey as cheaply as she possibly could, sleeping on a pile of grain sacks on deck while crossing Lake Erie, in company with a few other women who could afford only "deck passage."

At Oberlin she taught in vacation time; also in the preparatory department of the college. At an opportunity she did housework at 3 cents an hour. The college furnished board to poor students at $1 a week, but she could not afford to pay that price; by cooking her food in her room she lived on 50 cents a week. She had only one new dress, and that a cheap print, during the college course, and she did not go home at all during the four years; but she graduated with honors in 1847, and suffered neither in health nor self-respect. She was appointed to write a commencement essay; but as it was considered very unwomanly for a woman to appear on the platform and read her own work, she declined to write it rather than consent to have a professor read it for her.

She gave her first lecture on woman's rights in that same year from the pulpit of her brother's church, in Gardner, Mass. Soon after, her power as a speaker developing, she became identified with the anti-slavery movement and was engaged to lecture for the abolition party. All went well with her for a time, but presently she mixed the subject dearest to her heart—that of equal rights for men and women—so much with that of freedom of the slave that Rev. Samuel May felt obliged to remonstrate.

"I could not help it," she answered. "I was a woman before I was an abolitionist, and I must speak for women."

This was years before suffarage associations were formed. She had no "backing," whatever. She traveled through the country, putting up her own hand bills with tacks, using a stone from the street as a hammer. Sometimes boys followed her, hooting, with full purpose to tear down her posters, whereupon she would stop and hold a preliminary meeting, then and there. Gentle and persuasive, then as now, she never failed to win the boys to her side, at least to the extent of leaving her bills unharmed.

In most of the towns which she visited a woman in the role of public speaker was a novelty, a "sensation," and curiosity attracted immense crowds. It is said that all invariably expected to see a tall, raw-boned, angular, aggressive individual, instead of a sweet, plump, winning young woman, very gentle, although very determined, in her use of arguments.

For years Lucy Stone remained the sole missionary of the woman's rights movement, the only person who gave her time to preaching that particular form of gospel.

Lucy Stone did not mean to marry. But like ordinary women she fell in love, and upon his promise to devote his life to her "cause," to in every way further woman's advancement, she married Henry B. Blackwell. As she declared her unwillingness to "obey" her husband, no minister could be found within thirty miles who would marry them in such unscriptural fashion. Finally Rev. Thomas Wentworth Higginson came on from Worcester to perform the ceremony.

At the time of their marriage, which was in 1855, they published a joint protest against the unequal features of the laws giving to the husbands the control of the wife's property, earnings, children and person. This protest made a great stir at the time, and it had much to do with the getting of those laws amended.

Lucy Stone looked upon the loss of a woman's name at marriage as a symbol of the loss of her legal personality and personal rights; and, therefore, with the full consent of Mr. Blackwell, she decided to keep her maiden name, and she has never been known as "Mrs. Blackwell."

In 1859, with William Lloyd Garrison, Julia Ward Howe and Mary Livermore, Mrs. Stone organized the American Woman Suffrage Association. Mrs. Howe, Mrs. Livermore and Susan B. Anthony were among her early converts.

In 1870 Lucy Stone started the Woman's Journal, which has, under the editorship of herself, her husband and their one child, Miss Alice Stone Blackwell, become a flourishing paper, devoted to the cause of women.

The Blackwells have a beautiful home in Dorchester, and Lucy Stone has always been known as the very "pink of the New England housekeepers." Her relations with her husband have always been peculiarly happy.

TO MEET AT ST. PAUL.

The Next German Epworth League Convention Will Be Held There.

The closing day's session of the convention of the German Epworth League or Jugend-bund at Salem M. E. Church, Fifteenth and Wash streets, was begun this morning with prayer by Rev. W. F. Fritze of St. Paul. Rev. H. Siebhart, the President, took the chair at the conclusion of the services and introduced Rev. C. C. McCabe of New York, Secretary of the Missionary Society of the M. E. Church. Rev. H. L. Lindquist, formerly pastor of the Swedish M. E. Church of this city, now stationed at Burlington, Io., was also presented to the convention. Mr. H. H. Jacoby of St. Louis then delivered an address on the importance of the second condition of success for the society, namely "Intellectual Culture." Mr. Jacoby dwelt upon the importance of religious literature for the advancement of the society, the good to be derived from a perusal of denominational magazines, papers, etc. The delegates discussed the matter at length. Prof. Nuelsen of Minnesota, a son of Rev. Mr. Nuelsen of this city, developed the fourth condition of the society's success, which, he said, was its social function in the lives of the members. He explained where, when and how the meetings of the society might be of a social instead of a religious character. The next matter for consideration was whether the national conventions should be annual or biennial. After some debate it was decided to meet each year, either in October or November. St. Paul was put in nomination by Mr. George Dieter of that city as the place for the next convention.

Covington, Ky., was suggested by Mr. H. C. Dicklant of Cincinnati, and Seymour, Ind., was nominated by a delegate from that city. The merits of the three places were discussed with considerable spirit. When the vote was taken St. Paul received 113 ballots; Covington, 14, and Seymour, 2. The choice of St. Paul was made unanimous. The convention then sang the doxology and took a recess for dinner.

The afternoon session was begun with prayer by Rev. H. Ross of this city. Mr. H. A. Schroetler and B. Sampert of Chicago and Rev. H. Herzer of Ohio discussed the fourth condition for the society's success, mission work. The election of officers is to take place this afternoon. The convention will adjourn to-night, after a consecration meeting and convention love feast.

The feature of last evening's meeting was the presence of Mayor Walbridge, who was heartily welcomed by the delegates.

OWES OVER $100,000.

Mr. Dwight Tredway's Indebtedness to the Greeley-Burnham Co.

Mr. Dwight Tredway, who was the manager of the Greeley-Burnham Grocer Co. for ten years prior to the failure of the firm last summer, is reported in the appraisement just filed in court to be indebted to the firm to the amount of $106,127.71. That one member of a firm doing business on a stock and capital of about $350,000 should be allowed to become so heavily indebted to it appears almost incredulous, yet Mr. Tredway, when seen this morning by a POST-DISPATCH reporter, acknowledged the amount to be nearly correct.

"Have you anything to say in connection with the firm's failure?"

"No; I would prefer to say nothing. It would come with ill grace from me; there are others who are better able to speak on the subject. There is a long article in one of the morning papers that is full of misstatements."

"What are they?"

"I don't care to go into particulars. You had better see Mr. Greeley—he may or may not talk on the subject."

"Is it true that your indebtedness to the firm is over $100,000?"

"Yes, that is correct, but it is rather a delicate matter for me to discuss; not that I fear to make an explanation, but I prefer not to at present. Matters may look a little mixed just now, but I think everything will come out all right in the end. You will please excuse me from discussing the matter any further."

At the time of the assignment of the Greeley-Burnham Grocer Co., which was considered to be one of the richest and most prosperous concerns of its kind in the country, the schedule of assets showed a net balance of $352,842.75. The appraisement reduces this amount to $322,316.63, which includes about $46,000 of stocks and bills receivable which are pledged as collateral. In the original schedule the accounts receivable were placed at $169,688.47, and the book accounts at $118,554.28, while in the appraisement the accounts are set down at $44,610.88, and the bills receivable at $168,374.66. This great discrepancy can only be accounted for on the ground that a large number of oustanding accounts must have been considered worthless by the appraisers. Besides Dwight Tredway there are two other individual debtors who owe the assigned firm about $43,000. They are John S. Robbins, whose indebtedness is $28,692, and J. P. K. Miller, who is dead, and who owed the firm $14,398.

Mr. Robbins was the cashier, and his indebtedness, it is alleged, is secured by a deed of trust on his property on Park avenue. Miller was a customer and thought to be perfectly good for the amount he owed, but it is doubtful now if it can be realized from his estate.

The liabilities of the firm have not been scheduled yet and will not be until November, so that the exact condition of the firm's affairs cannot be arrived at until that is done.

DROPPED A TRUNK.

Two Supposed Thieves Leave Property Behind Them.

Last night Private Watchman Fred Brown saw two men approaching the river bank at the foot of Iron street, Carondelet, but before he could overtake them they succeeded in casting an object, which they were carrying into the river and making their escape. The officer then turned his attention to the parcel that had been thrown into the river and in his search found an old-fashioned black trunk, the lid of which was open, and the contents of which were a few old newspapers, a gent's silver watch-chain, a bunch of four keys on a ring, a memorandum book, an old $2 bill of the Northwestern Bank of Pennsylvania of 1860 and a $1,200 bill of sale for a circus outfit, dated Jan. 3, 1860, from Antonio Bros. to James W. Wilder.

The trunk was brought to the First District Police Station where it awaits identification. It is thought that it was stolen from some residence, and that the crooks cast it into the river to escape detection.

IMPORTANT DECISION.

A Serious Point Definitely Settled.

It Is a Question Which Interests Women as Well as Men.

The Matter Just Now One of Special Significance.

Two prominent business men say the same thing.

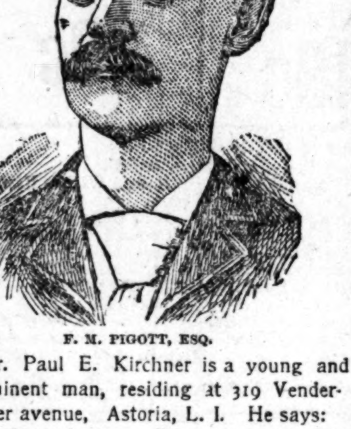
Owing to the high position they occupy in the business world their word may be taken by all as the absolute truth.

F. M. Pigott, Esq., is a well-known resident of Dola, W. Va., and his words have no uncertain meaning.

"For some months," he said, "I had been troubled with nervous dyspepsia and palpitation of the heart, with symptoms of nervous weakness and paralysis.

"I had taken treatment from some of our best phys icians, but they did not cure me. I had continually fallen off in weight from 180 to 145 lbs., when I was induced by our druggist, R. S. Ogden of Sardis, to try Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy.

"I was surprised at the benefit I received from the use of this medicine. All those very annoying troubles have left me, and I actually gained 10 lbs. in 13 days. I am now using the second bottle of the Nervura and weigh 178 lbs. This I attribute all to this splendid medicine. It is the best remedy to help the sick and cure suffering humanity."



F. M. PIGOTT, ESQ.

Mr. Paul E. Kirchner is a young and prominent man, residing at 319 Vendeventer avenue, Astoria, L. I. He says:

"I have been a sufferer from dreadful dyspepsia, terrible nervousness and palpitation of the heart for four years.

"I have been so bad that I had to give up my business. I was fearfully nervous and could not sleep nights, after lying awake half the night, I would have to lie on my stomach and put my hand on my heart, I was so nervous and had such palpitation.

"I would get up mornings feeling tired and dragged out, could not eat anything for breakfast and thought every second that I was going to drop dead.

"I tried doctors all over and none could help me. I went to Mt. Sinai hospital and the doctors there could not help me.

"I finally gave up all hope of being cured for I was a total wreck. One day I saw an advertisement of Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy in the Evening World.

MR. PAUL E. KIRCHNER.

"I tried a bottle and as soon as I had taken about half of it I began to feel better. I have now taken two bottles and a half and am feeling first rate. I now feel strong and vigorous and can work all right.

"I say that this wonderful medicine, Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy, is the greatest medicine ever discovered."

It is a fact that this remedy cures. And if it will cure such serious and long-standing troubles as the above, how much more easily and surely will it cure all the ordinary complaints of life—stomach, liver, kidney troubles, constipation, headache, nervousness, sleeplessness and the poor blood, weak nerves and low vitality and debility.

It is the best medicine possible to take, for it will give you health and strength. It is purely vegetable and harmless, indeed it is the discovery and prescription of the well-known Dr. Greene of 35 West 14th street, New York, who is the most successful specialist in curing nervous and chronic diseases, and who can be consulted free, personally or by letter.

Found by an Honest Man.

Mrs. P. S. Latanier of Ivanhoe, Kan., on her way to visit friends near Cincinnati, O., lost her pocketbook at the Union Depot this morning. The pocketbook contained $10.60 and her railroad ticket. A baggageman found the purse and turned it over to the police, who gave it to Mrs. Latamer when she reported her loss. The lady was accompanied by her two children and a dog. It is supposed that while lifting the dog from the train she dropped the pocketbook on the platform, where the baggage man found it.

LOST $15,000,000.

The Lately Wedded Charles L. Fair Disinherited by His Father.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Oct. 19.—Charles L. Fair, whose marriage to a disreputable woman on Friday last created so much comment throughout the country, has been disinherited by his father, ex-United States Senator Fair. On Monday night there was an alteration made in the old miner's will and the alteration cut the young man's inheritance from something like $15,000,000 to a paltry $100. The codicil, amounting to revocation, was drawn up by the ex-Senator's attorney. The clause in the will by which half the enormous estate was to go to Charlie was stricken out and a substitute was added to give him $100. To emphasize this action, a long explanation was inserted in the document. This set forth in strong and full detail that much of the father's affection, often and severely tried, had been alienated by the son's prolonged debauches, and the remainder had been completely eradicated by the young man's marriage to a disreputable woman. Mr. Fair is not accessible, his condition being such as to preclude the possibility of any sort of a statement concerning his intentions. However, he expressed himself to a friend as being positive that Maude Nelson only married Charlie for his prospective wealth, and that he should do all he could to prevent a consummation of her purpose. Young Fair and his bride are now on their way East, and will sail for Europe soon after their arrival in New York. Before the bridal tour began Charlie drew his monthly allowance of $1,000, which he gets from his mother's estate, and left orders with Richard V. Dey, one of the executors of his mother's estate, to send the money to him, until further orders, at the Continental Hotel, Paris.

UPHOLD THEIR MEN.

The C. & A.'s Official Plea for Their Trainmen's Barbarism.

A STATEMENT WHICH IS AS SILLY AS IT IS UNTRUE.

The Trainmen Said Not to Have Known the Necessity for Relief, When the Fact Is That They Brought the News of the Wreck to the City—The Wabash's Position.

So much adverse criticism was occasioned by the conduct of Conductor Ogan and Engineer Hawkes of local train No. 2 of the Chicago & Alton Railroad in failing to stop and render assisance to the victims of the accident to Train No. 5 of the Wabash line near Nameoki last Monday night that it has been deemed necessary to issue an official statement from the C. & A. headquarters at Chicago in order to set the road as near right in the eyes of the public as possible under the circumstances. Popular indignation at the almost inconceivable inhumanity—railroad men call it thoughtlessness—of the train's crew, who saw the burning wreck and the wounded people being dragged from the overturned coaches and yet did not offer a hand to prevent the sufferers from being cremated was so great that policy forbade silence. The ingenuity of the officials in this perplexing exigency was plainly overtaxed, as is shown by the following disingenuous official justification of the action of the company's agents:

THE EXPLANATION.

The St. Louis newspaper articles and dispatches to Chicago papers reflecting upon the alleged actions of the Chicago & Alton trainmen in connection with the recent wreck on the Wabash line near Nameoki have had a thorough investigation at the hands of the General Manager. The Wabash people, who have evidently posted the St. Louis papers, have been laboring under the impression that our train (No. 46) was signaled at the wreck and did not stop. Investigations show that train No. 46 was nine minutas ahead of the wreck, so that that train could not possibly have been signaled. Local No. 2 was flagged at Nameoki Station by a porter of the Wabash railway, who informed Conductor Ogan that there was a Wabash train in the ditch, but no assistance was asked for, or it would have been promptly rendered. If, under the circumstances, our conductor failed to offer assistance when it was not asked he could not fairly be charged with more than an error of judgment. Certainly he was not guilty of criminal negligence. Train No. 2 was hauled by Engineer Hawkes, who has been employed by the Alton company for over thirty years, and is one of the best and most reliable engineers of the road. He is fully posted on his duties and the courtesy due other railway lines, and the necessity for prompt action in cases of emergency. The engineer, however, did not know of the conversation between our conductor and the Wabash porter and was not aware until passing the wreck that it was a passenger train which was in trouble. To show that the engineer did not know the nature of the trouble, it has been learned that he made a remark to his fireman that 'from the demonstrations of the people they seemed to be enjoying the scene.' He had no idea that any lives were in danger. The Wabash porter who flagged the train at Nameoki Station, which is some distance from the point at which the wreck occurred, did not advise our train crew that there was any one injured or hurt in any way in the wreck. While Conductor Ogan admits that he may have made an error of judgment, he submits that at the time he was flagged at Nameoki Station none of the facts in the case had been given him.

From the reports it appears that there was a Division Superintendent and Trainmaster of the Wabash road on the wrecked train, who ought to have known enough to have adopted proper methods in signaling our train to stop, if they wished to have it stopped, and it is fair to assume that had it not been for the excitement and confusion, these Wabash officials would have taken the ordinary and proper precautions to stop our train at the wreck. To this extent, therefore, the representatives of the operating department of the Wabash road, who knew their own needs, were certainly as much at fault as our train crew, who did not know what the trouble was.

CANNOT AFFORD TO CRITICISE.

It is interesting to know that the C. & A. has actually investigated the course pursued by its employes and also that it seems to think that the conductor and trainmen were about right. The intimation that the newspapers had been instigated in making their comments upon the affair by the Wabash people is incorrect. The POST-DISPATCH was actuated only by the facts in the case which were so glaring that they could not be hidden from its reporters. The Wabash should be shielded from the imputation of having condemned or even suggested a criticism of the heartlessness of the C. & A. men. The Wabash has interests at stake of various natures, and to-day when a POST-DISPATCH called at its offices for information he was told that the road did not want to appear as criticising the C. & A. So the Chicago & Alton officials did the Wabash a gross injustice when it arraigned them on the side of humanity and the public good, as against railroad interests. It is true that the C. & A. could have saved them a loss of about $20,000 if its men had stopped and put the fire out, but there are matters of very much more moment than the burning of a few passenger cars. No, the Wabash is not saying anything about the Chicago & Alton. It is only the newspapers and the public.

The official statement says it was not train No. 46 that passed the wreck, but No. 2. Just after the accident it was given out that it was No. 46, which had to go on in order to get out of the way of No. 2. The excuse that the conductor was not informed by the porter who flagged his train of the state of affairs at the wreck is very lame, for even if this had been the case, both the conductor and the engineer could see for themselves as they passed that lives were in danger and property was being destroyed. There was plenty of light from the engine and from the cafe, which was burning like a bonfire, for them to take in the whole situation. That they did take it is shown by the fact that they reported it when they arrived in St. Louis. Engineer Hawkes' statement that the people at the wreck seemed to be enjoying the scene is a bit of facetiousness, presumably, because he could not have thought it would be accepted soberly, following as it did the statement he is alleged to have made that he smelt burning flesh as he passed the wreck and it made him sick. The truthfulness of the two assertions are on a par, as there was no flesh burned, no thanks to Engineer Hawkes or the Chicago & Alton.

The last apology in the official document, to the effect that there were a division superintendent and a trainmaster on the Wabash train and that they ought to have taken proper precautions to properly flag the Chicago & Alton train, is wholly without force. There were dozens of people at the wreck signaling the C. & A. to stop and one porter stood close to the track with the rays from the headlight full on him and waved his white jacket. Division Superintendent Goodrich and Trainmaster Cotter were both seriously injured and the latter is still confined to his bed. The Chicago & Alton's explanation is a gem in its way, and clearly shows the company's willingness to stand by its inhuman employes.

THE VANDAL WAVES.

The Dead Torn From Their Graves by the Recent Storms.

BALTIMORE, Md., Oct. 19.—Officers of the Weems Line steamers report that a cemetery on Solomon's Island was badly washed in Friday's storm. The burial ground was in the yard of a Methodist Episcopal Church that stood at the end of a long, low strip of ground, with water on either side. The graves were only slightly above the water level and within fifteen feet of the water's edge. During the storm the waters gradually approached the graves and tombstones. The mounds began to level and the marble slabs to topple, and in a short while the grassy surface had disappeared. Many of the tombstones were prostrated and some of the coffins were exposed. Next the waves completely hid the cemetery, and when the storm subsided the earth was torn and bare and coffins were broken open, corpses were exposed and the clothing of some of the dead was found on the beach.

THE STREET ARABS.

Newsboys and Bootblacks Have an Inning at the World's Fair.

WORLD'S FAIR GROUNDS, Oct. 19.—Paid admissions to the Fair yesterday, 299,121. Two trainloads of newsboys and bootblacks came into the Fair this morning. They gathered down town at the Art Institute, and the committee having the matter in charge marched the youngsters to two special trains and they were carried to the Fair. There was a carload of provisions which had been provided by charitably inclined people, and the boys were entertained royally. It was a splendid day for sight-seeing, and the horde of street urchins quickly overran the grounds.

Then the school children of the city came in large numbers. Excursion trains arrived from Joliet and Lemont, bearing the school children of those cities. The Boards of Education of Joliet and Lemont gave the school children two days' vacation, and the teachers in the public schools gathered the pupils of their classes together and brought them here. The crowd of children at the Fair to-day is probably larger than on any preceding day of the Exposition. Yesterday there were 65,000 children present.

The announcement made by the Council of Administration yesterday that the Fair would not be formally closed Oct. 30, but would continue as long as the weather permitted and the people wanted to come, does not mean exactly what it says. Nobody expected that the gates would be abandoned the moment that the curtain dropped on the White City, and it certainly will drop on Oct. 30, and nobody expected that people who wished to enter the grounds to watch the buildings being torn down and the exhibits moved away would be denied that privilege if they were willing to pay to pass through the gates. That is all the resolution adopted by the Council of Administration means. The Fair has no official recognition by Congress after Oct. 30 and many of the exhibits will be on their way out of the grounds as early as 5 o'clock the morning of the 31st inst. Many of the exhibitors already hold permits to remove their goods on that date and have contracts with the transportation and railroad companies to carry the goods home from the first of the month on.

Manhattan Day is now an assured success. The arrangements have been about completed and the crowds are coming. The down-town hotels are even now taxed to their limits and accommodations are at a premium. New Yorkers are arriving by the thousands, and the State building is filled from morning to night. The building, one of the most beautiful on the grounds, is being elaborately decorated with flags and bunting and flowers for Saturday's reception of distinguished guests. Music and speech-making will be features of the entertainment at the State Building. There will be no official reception on account of the big crowd of visitors expected there. Everybody, however, will be welcomed by the commissioners. After the speech-making, Mayor Gilroy, Chauncey M. Depew, Bourke Cockran, Charles Smith, Seth Low, the Manhattan Day Committee, the Old Guard and others will sit down to a banquet in the grand hall of the New York State building.

The fireworks arranged for the evening will consist of many set pieces. The central feature will be a large ship, which when illuminated in many colors will read: "Chicago to New York—She can't be beat."

There will also be pictures in fire of Mayor Gilroy, Niagara Falls, the Goddess of Liberty and of the Brooklyn Bridge. In the morning a salute will be fired by the 1st Regiment, Illinois National Guard. There will be balloon ascensions and other popular features during the day.

TROUBLE WITH INDIANS THREATENED.

Uneasiness at Pine Ridge Agency on Account of Renegades.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 19.—Great uneasiness is felt at the Pine Ridge Indian Agency on account of the numerous renegade Indians from other reservations, and it is believed that the troops will have to be called upon to suppress these lawless fellows. A report has been made to this effect by the Indian Agent at Pine Ridge to the Commissioner of Indian Affairs. The agent said he had for some time been trying to rid the reservation of the lawless renegades, but that he had met with but poor success. They are, he says, a source of constant danger. He also refers to the sanitary arrangements of the agency, which he says are bad in the extreme, and unless arrangements are made for their improvement he fears a pestilence may break out.

THE INDIAN AND CITIZENSHIP.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 19.—The Indian agent at Tullalip, Wash., has submitted his report to the Interior Department. He says intoxication is the predominant evil among the Indians. The evil will grow, he thinks, because of the decision of the courts that an Indian holding a patent to land is a citizen. He recommends on account of this that a law be passed holding that when a patent is given it shall not confer citizenship upon an Indian.

THEIR ANNUAL WAR DANCE.

GRAY HORSE, O. T., Oct. 19.—The Osage warriors, with 300 Cheyennes under Yellow Bear, and several hundred Poncas and Otoes, are holding their annual war dance near this place. They have been dancing five days and nights and will probably keep it up for ten days more. The Osage agent has ordered them to stop, but no attention has been paid to his command. Serious mischief is apprehended.

THE IRON TRADE.

CLEVELAND, O., Oct. 19.—It has been apparent for some time that favored producers in iron and steel, whose low cost possibilities are a fruitful subject of market gossip, have exhausted their advantage and are straining every point to keep in operation on a tonnage basis that will save them from loss. It is yet to be demonstrated whether there is beyond the volume of business that has been gained recently, through these special inducements, a further fresh supply of orders that will keep mills now active in operation into the new year, or whether the early fall activity has been largely a compensation for the inroad consumption made upon stocks in the long shut down of Western mills. Nothing has developed within the week to indicate that demand is sensibly growing.

The effect of the tariff uncertainty in iron and steel, visible in all departments of the trade in paralyzing demand, is illustrated in the failure of an important and hitherto prosperous Eastern Pennsylvania concern. How long the iron trade at large can stand the strain depends upon how long certain gentlemen at Washington persist in being as those who having eyes and see not.

Democrats Shut Out.

EMPORIA, Kan., Oct. 19.—It seems that the Democracy of Kansas has lost its right to representation for judges and clerks under the Australian election system. The law provides that the three parties represented at the last general election shall be entitled to judges and clerks. The Democrats at the last election fused with the Populists and are now shut out. The parties having representation at the polls will be Populist, Republican and Prohibition. There is no difference of opinion among lawyers upon the subject.

To say that the public are taking advantage of the new and generous offer recently made by the POST-DISPATCH and which enables them to secure works from a selection of over 3,000 by the best authors at actual cost prices would be putting it much too mildly. NO. 517 OLIVE STREET SOLD.

James M. Carpenter Purchases the Property for $90,000—Real Estate News.

The property known as 517 Olive street was sold this morning for $90,000, from Ambrose K. Brettel to Mr. James M. Carpenter, one of the most conservative real estate men in the city. The property has a frontage of 25 feet on the north side of Olive street, just two doors west of the POST-DISPATCH Building. It is improved with a brick building now under lease to King's saloon and other tenants at a rental which makes the investment one of the best in the down-town district. The property is 114 feet deep and its rear is overlaped ten feet by Mr. Carpenter's buildings in the same block which front on the east side of Sixth street, between Olive and Locust streets. The property at the northeast corner of Sixth and Olive street, fronting 50 feet on Olive street by a depth of 114 feet on Sixth street, which is owned by Mrs. Adele Morrison and Mrs. Virginia Pugnet, is thus surrounded on two sides by Mr. Carpenter's property since the acquisition of the Brettel property, and it is thought by other real estate men that he intends to purchase the corner also and to erect a handsome building on the large site, which the purchase of the Morrison and Pugnet interests would give him. Mr. Carpenter's holdings on Sixth street have a frontage of 44 feet by a depth of 62 feet 5 inches. They are improved with about the same class of buildings as the Brettel property on Olive street, which though paying a handsome rental could be made to pay a much better one by the erection of modern buildings. The deal between Mr. Carpenter and Mr. Brettel was negotiated by the Legg-Blackwelder-Holbrook Real Estate Co., and although the deeds have not yet passed earnest money has been paid and the delay in closing is merely a matter of form.

Mr. Brettel takes in part payment from Mr. Carpenter the latter's houses on Clarkson place, south of Morgan street, between Grand and Vandeventer avenues. These houses were valued at about $41,000.

The price paid for the Olive street property by Mr. Carpenter is $5,000 in advance of what was asked for it about thirty days ago, when Mrs. Morrison, who owns the fifty feet at the corner of Sixth and Olive streets, was given an option on it. She gave up her option in consequence of some dispute about the title to the property, which has since been settled satisfactorily to Mr. Carpenter. The price paid by the latter is $3,600 a foot.

An important lease of Fourth street business property was consummated this morning by the firm of Wm. Booth & Co. The property leased is the four-story building No. 209 North Fourth street, adjoining the Laclede building on the south and at present occupied by Balmer & Weber's music store. Wm. A. Stickney has secured a five years' lease on the property, commencing Jan. 1, 1894, at an annual rental of $15,000. The property has a frontage of 25 feet, and the building is in fairly good condition.

Nearly 200 front feet of the old St. Louis University property at Ninth street and Washington avenue will be sold at public auction Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock, on the premises, by the firm of Green & La Motte. The site is one of the most prominent on Washington avenue, and its sale at auction on the present market is looked forward to by the agents and speculators with a great deal of interest.

The property to be sold is the 167 feet on the north side of Washington avenue between the handsome new Edward Mallinckrodt Building and the new Martin Building at Tenth and Washington. The Washington avenue lots have a depth of 125 feet to a 25-foot court.

Three lots of 35 feet front each on Lucas avenue by a depth of 75 feet 8¾ inches will also be sold at the same time. The Washington avenue frontage will be divided into two lots of 53 feet 6 inches front each.

At 4 o'clock of the same afternoon the firm will sell at auction 225 feet of ground on the south side of Washington avenue, with a like frontage on St. Charles street, between Twentieth and Twenty-first streets.

The Robinson-Fogg-Wilson Real Estate Co. report the sale of 154x200 feet of ground at the southeast corner of Maple and Papin avenues, in Annan's addition to Webster, for $1,500, from Chas. A. Robinson to Robert Horstool, who will improve the site with a $3,000 dwelling.

Robert Rutledge of the firm of Rutledge & Kilpatrick has returned from a visit to the World's Fair.

Chas. Wengler of the Harris & Wengler agency has returned from Chicago.

George A. Slatery reports the following sales: Houses 4208 and 4210 Margaretta avenue, two four-room brick houses, with 35x120 feet of ground each, for $1,570, from Kate Graham and others to George A. Slatery.

Bartmer avenue—North side, west of the St. Louis & Suburban Electric Railroad, 100x147½ feet of ground at $20 a foot, from R. W. Green to G. N. Nahm.

Mr. Slatery also reports that he has closed the sale of 25x130 feet of ground on the west side of Red Bud avenue, between Lee and Kossuth avenues, from the Northern Central Realty and Construction Co. to Mrs. Maggie Murphy for $16 a foot. The site is to be improved with a dwelling.

A. E. Weiss & Co. report the sale of house No. 320 Cedar street, with 25 feet of ground, for $2,050, from Dr. Chas. V. F. Ludwig to Dr. H. L. Nietert.

A. L. Shoults reports the sale of houses 3006 and 3008 Park avenue, four five-room flats, with lot 43 feet front, for $12,000, from G. E. Henner to A. E. Engle and Walter C. Dunlap. The property was bought for investment.

The Rice-Dwyer Real Estate Co. report the sale of house No. 3820 Lincoln avenue, a two-story eight-room frame dwelling with lot 25x125 feet, for $1,500, from Thomas McKinnie to Patrick Powers, for a home.

Moore & Lightner report the sale of a three-room brick dwelling with 20x125 feet of ground on the south side of Swan avenue, west of Newstead, for $1,640, from C. W. Moore to H. B. Wall.

BY AN EYE WITNESS.

E. D. Saunders of New Orleans Graphically Describes the Recent Hurricane.

Dr. E. W. Saunders of 1526 Mississippi avenue a few days ago received a letter from his brother, E. D. Saunders, a member of the law firm of White, Parlange & Saunders, o New Orleans, which graphically describe the desolation and distress caused by the recent hurricane. Mr. Saunders was an eye-witness of much that he describes. The letter is dated from Covington and reads, in part, as follows:

You have no doubt seen an account of the awful calamity which befel the coast and islands of Louisiana. It is supposed that from 1,200 to 1,500 people perished. In many cases only one or two survived out of large families, and often whole families perished together. In several places the survivors are unable to bury the dead. Disease and famine are rapidly carrying off those who escaped the fury of the hurricane. The sufferers were mainly in the settlements of fishermen, and these settlements were often in localities accessible only to the smallest steamboats and to them with great difficulty. There are so few of this sort of steamboats in use now, that it looks as if it would be impossible to reach many of the settlements in time to bring relief to those that are left. Their houses are destroyed. Their boats and luggers gone. Their small stores of provisions scattered for miles through impassable sinking prairies, and most appalling calamity of all the cisterns, on which alone they relied for drinking water, are overthrown and broken to pieces. The poor people are under a burning sun, many and probably most of them bruised and wounded, without shelter except such as they can improvise from the wreck and fragments of their cabins and without food or water. Their means of communication with the outside world are destroyed and if relief does not reach them they will die a more miserable death than those who perished in the hurricane. Many relief parties have gone out and no doubt many will be saved, but many more will die before help can reach them. The full extent of the calamity will never be known. In one locality, out of a population of 1,400, it is estimated that not 300 remain.

Perhaps you saw and remember the long bridges on the L. & N. R. R. between Mobile and New Orleans. These bridges were constructed by driving heavy piles into the sand, on which the shallow estuaries from the gulf rest, and then fastening by strong iron rods large sleepers on these piles. The cross ties were bolted to the sleepers and the rails were bolted to the cross ties. It would seem impossible that any wind could have lifted this structure of sleepers, cross ties and rails from the piles, but the hurricane of last Sunday night tore away sleepers, cross ties and rails and whirled them far into space, broken and twisted as easily as if they had been straws.

TRENTON MONUMENT

Unveiling of the Shaft Commemorating the Historic Battle.

THE EXERCISES WITNESSED BY THOUSANDS OF AMERICAN PATRIOTS.

Over 5,000 Troops From New York, Pennsylvania, Massachusetts, Connecticut and New Jersey in Line—Soldiers Extended Warm Hospitality—Programme Carried Out—Description.

TRENTON, N. J., Oct. 19.—The monument erected in this city to commemorate the Battle of Trenton was unveiled to-day. Promptly at 12:30 o'clock the procession of troops and the Governors, the societies and the invited guests started for the monument. The reviewing stand was erected in front of the county court-house on Broad street, and here, after the ceremonies at the monument, the procession was reviewed by Gov. Werts. There were over 5,000 troops in line from New York, Pennsylvania, Massachusetts, Connecticut and New Jersey, the command being formed under Gen. Sewell of this State. All of the large wagons in town were pressed into service and loaded with boxes filled with sandwiches. These were taken to Greenwood, where they were served out as lunch. Coffee to the extent of 1,000 gallons was prepared and given to the troops. The weather is cloudy, but there does not seem to be any fear of rain in the minds of the weather-wise. The day is cool and the streets are filled with people wearing badges and carrying flags. The ground near the monument is fairly black with humanity, waiting for the procession.

Music by the band of the 7th Regiment, New York National Guard.

Prayer by the Rt. Rev. Thomas A. Starkey, Bishop of Newark.

Address by George T. Werts, Governor of New Jersey.

Benediction by the Rev. Thos. Hanlon.

The battle monument in the city of Trenton, which was unveiled to-day, has for its principal ornament a large bronze statue of Washington, which stands on top of a handsome shaft. The monument is 150 feet above the street level, weighs 4,000,000 pounds and the shaft alone cost over 160,000.

For fifty years the subject of erection of a monument to commemorate the battle of Trenton has been discussed. It was not until May 7, 1884, that matters assumed any shape. At that time the Trenton Battle Monument Association was formed. An appropriation of $15,000 was secured from the State of New Jersey, and after some delay the Congress of the United States made an appropriation of $30,000 and individual subscriptions to the amount of $15,000 were secured for the proposed monument.

The bronze statue of Washington at the top of the shaft was presented by the State of New York through a legislative appropriation in view of the fact that New York troops participated in the battle of Trenton, which engagement probably decided the fate of our country. Thus it is that New York's two most distinguished citizens, President Cleveland and Gov. Flower, were invited to be present at the dedication, and in addition the West Point cadets were asked to attend and New Jersey, Massachusetts, Connecticut and Pennsylvania paraded the flower of their national guard and that fifteen Governors and their staffs were asked to be present with the Cabinet officers at to-day's ceremonies. The shaft in itself commemorates the battle of Trenton, which occurred after the stirring events about New York. Washington is represented as he appeared on the morning of Dec. 26 previous to the famous battle. On that day Washington came down the Pennsington road to the spot where the monument now stands and ordered Capt. Alexander Hamilton, the 19-year-old artillery man of New York, later the distinguished statesman, to open fire on the enemy advancing up Warren street. Washington then gave the order for two brigades of American troops to hurry up the Brunswick road and prevent the enemy from escaping to Princeton. Then came the battle and victory.

The statue of Washington surmounting the shaft is the work of Wm. Rudolph O'Donovan of New York, who has made a study of the face and figure of Washington for nearly twenty years.

The uniform represented in the statue is an exact copy of that worn by Washington during the revolutionary war. Mr. O'Donovan had the suit now in the Smithsonian Institute at Washington carefully measured and reproduced, and made the model of a man 6 feet 3 inches high. Every portion of the uniform and the model were doubled and this, with the bronze pedestal, makes the statue just thirteen feet high.

The style of the column erected is known as the Roman Doric. The base of the pedestal is 29 feet 8 inches square, and rising from the pedestal is a hollow fluted column of handsome proportions, the cap of which forms an observatory. The top of the granite work is 135 feet above the foundation, and with the 13-foot statue it is 148 feet in height, or 150 feet above the street level. The foundation is of concrete 19 feet deep. There is a room inside the pedestal 19 feet across of cruciform shape. In this room there are three niches, designed to receive such revolutionary and historical trophies as may be presented to the association.

Access to the observatory at the top of the monument will be had by means of an electric elevator. The view from the observatory is one of great beauty, the country for miles around being spread out like a panorama. Thirteen electric lights will crown the top of the observatory. There are two bronze statues at the doorway, one representing an infantry man and the other a cavalry man. On the die above the base are blanks, on which will be placed four bronze reliefs of events connected with the battle of Trenton and the revolutionary war.

The doors are guarded by statues of John Russell in the uniform of the "Marblehead fisherman," and of Blair McClenachan, a member of the Philadelphia City Troop. Both statues are by Mr. O'Donovan. The relief on the west side represents the crossing of the Delaware. In the foreground is Capt. Wm. Washington and Lieut. James Monroe, afterward President. The boat in the foreground contains Washington and Col. Knox, the artillerist. On the south is the relief, "The opening of the fight." The battery of Capt. Hamilton is about to open fire down Warren street at the advancing line of Hessians. The two reliefs are by Thomas Eakins of Philadelphia. To the east of the relief is "The Surrender of the Hessians," by Earl H. Niehaus. The infantry column to the left is Col. Bradley's battalion of Connecticut State troops and the Hessian regiments of Rall and Von Losberg are throwing down their arms. "The Opening of the Fight" was presented by the State of New York, "The Continental Army Crossing the Delaware" by the State of Pennsylvania and "The Surrender of the Hessians" by the State of Connecticut.

Ground for the monument was broken Sept. 20, 1891, and the cornerstone was laid with impressive ceremonies on Saturday, Dec. 26, 1891, the 150th anniversary of the battle of Trenton.

For Beating His Mother.

Mrs. Christina Babst, an old woman, living at 2102 Howard street, took out a warrant against her son, Charles, charging him with beating her. The alleged assault took place this morning at the breakfast table, and she avers that it is not the first time that her son has struck her. He is a blacksmith, but has not worked for several months and the mother has supported him and herself, she stated, by taking in washing. This morning there was no meat for breakfast and the son became angry and Mrs. Babst alleged struck her in the eye and knocked her down and beat her after she was down with a chain. Mrs. Babst was accompanied by a married daughter, Mrs. Richter, of 1600 North Eighteenth street, and wept while she told her story to Assistant Prosecuting Attorney Estep.

Waived Examination.

This morning George Bruns, alias "Red George," who confessed that he robbed the safe of Wade Bros. of $400 several days ago, waived examination in the Court of Criminal Correction and was bound over in the sum of $800 to the Grand-jury.

Bruns claims that he was robbed of most of the money while asleep in a freight car on the Levee, but since then has taken the officers and his former employers to several places where he claimed that he had hidden the money, but it was not found.

OBITUARY.

PARIS, Oct. 19.—The question of giving a state funeral to the remains of Gounod, the great composer, who died yesterday morning, remains in abeyance. In any event the funeral will not occur until after the fetes in honor of the Russian visitors are over.

This recalls the fact that two of the most prominent men in France died within the past two days, men whose deaths under other circumstances would have caused sensations, and whose demise would, had it not been for the peculiar frame of mind in which the capital finds itself, have plunged this city at least into mourning. Public funerals with tremendous display of outward grief would have been insisted upon and all Paris would have turned out to witness the funerals of Marshal MacMahon, Duke of Magenta, ex-President of France, and that of Charles Francis Gounod, the composer of "Faust." But with the war spirit disturbing her France seems hardly to have noticed that two of her greatest citizens, the ex-soldier-statesman, last of the great marshals of France, and the great creator of musical masterpieces, known the world over, have passed away from beneath the folds of the tri-color. France in her mad worship of the Russian sailors and in her thoughtless trust in the friendship of the Czar, apparently has no thought for her great dead; in any case she puts off their funerals until a more convenient date.

PROF. JOHN E. CHRISTIAN.

BLACKSBURG, Va., Oct. 19.—The death is announced of John E. Christian, Professor of Mathematics in the Virginia Agricultural and Mechanical College. He was stricken with indigestion two months ago, which soon turned into consumption, from which he died. He was a brother of Rev. Wm. H. Christian of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South.

THOMAS JOHNSON.

WEST PLAINS, Mo., Oct. 19.—Thomas Johnson, a large real estate owner and a wealthy citizen, was found dead in his room. The Coroner's jury said he died from apoplexy. He formerly ran a hotel in Lexington, Mo. He was putting up a fine opera-house when he died.

ROSCOE CONKLING'S WIDOW.

NEW YORK, Oct. 19.—The widow of Roscoe Conkling died at her home in Utica, yesterday afternoon, of apoplexy. She was a daughter of the late Henry and Mary Ledyard Seymour and a sister of Horatio Seymour. She was born in Utica in May, 1827.

The Alleged Offense Outlawed.

J. F. Lewis, who arrived in St. Louis yesterday from Little Rock, Ark., told a peculiar story in applying for a warrant to-day. Lewis formerly kept a store twenty-six miles from Little Rock and was arrested in St. Louis Sept. 14, 1892, on a charge of attempted fraud in buying goods from St. Louis merchants and giving worthless checks. While in jail he had Jailer Kraemer apply for a warrant against the keeper of a boarding-house at which he had been stopping, claiming that some clothes had been taken out of his valise at the place. Assisting Prosecuting Attorney Estep told the jailer that Lewis had better wait until he got out of jail and then apply for the warrant. Lewis applied for the warrant to-day, he having got out of the meshes of the law by serving two sentences, one in St. Louis and one in Little Rock for a series of three offenses committed one after the other.

Assistant Prosecuting Attorney Estep told him that he could not prosecute the boarding-house keeper, as the case was outlawed, more than a year having passed since the alleged offense was committed.

Bernard-Beard Case.

The case of Frank Beard and Derrick Bernard, charged with murder in the second degree, should have been called for trial at 2 o'clock this afternoon, but it was passed down by consent of the counsel for both sides to be called up later in the day, when other cases in which Attorney McDonald was interested would be disposed of. Beard and Bernard have taken a severance in the case. They are charged with clubbing Ashley Jones, a lumber merchant of West Point, Ark., to death in the saloon at 1216 Pine street on Sept. 11, 1891. Mr. McDonald represents Beard and Charles P. Johnson is counsel for Bernard. Beard was tried last June, but the jury disagreed, were discharged, and the case ordered to be re-tried. By agreement Beard's case is to be tried before Bernard's, and it is probable the work of empaneling a jury to try Beard will have been almost completed by to-morrow morning.

Charged With Theft.

Warrants were issued to-day against David Acklind and William Ennis charging them with stealing twenty-one chickens from Mrs. William Hassmann of 1520 Billon street and a bundle of sash cords from Richard T. Daws on of 2014 Knox avenue on the night of Oct. 14. The parties were arrested and the property recovered on the same night that the thefts were committed, all excepting the heads of the chickens, which were missing.

Fickler Gets a Warrant.

A warrant charging assault with intent to kill was issued to-day against Jefferson Bloomfield of 828 South Fourteenth street on complaint of John Fickler of 220 South Thirteenth street. An old grudge exists be tween the men, and yesterday afternoon they fired several shots at each other, but without effect. Fickler claims Broomfield began the firing. While passing Fourteenth street and Clark avenue he met Broomfield who was on the sidewalk. Broomfield, it is alleged, drew a revolver and fired at Fickler.

GET THE RECEIVER

Petitioners Win in the Western Union Association Suit.

JUDGE VALLIANT GRANTS THEIR APPLICATION FOR A RECEIVER.

The Contending Sides, Failing to Agree On a Man, the Court Decides to Name One—Dressmaker Madame L. Thurn Brings Suit Against George W. Allen for His Wife's Bill.

One of the Western Union Building Associations, of which Milo T. Bogard was formerly secretary, will go into the hands of a receiver, who will be selected by Judge Valliant either late this afternoon or to-morrow. The stockholders, or several of them, applied to the court for the appointment of a receiver, claiming that the affairs of the association were not being properly conducted. To this application a demurrer was filed, claiming that there was not a sufficiency of facts stated to justify action on the part of the court. Arguments were made on both sides and affidavits innumerable filed. The arguments were concluded day before yesterday and Judge Valliant said he would pass upon the case this morning.

After the docket had been called this morning Judge Valliant rendered his decision in the case. The demurrer was overruled and the original application sustained. Then the Court informed the attorneys on both sides that if they could come to an agreement as to whom they preferred as receiver he would appoint the person agreed upon, but if the plaintiff and defendant could not agree he would make his own selection and desired no suggestions whatever from the attorneys.

The attorneys failed to agree and so reported to the court, and in the meantime the association directors through their attorney filed an answer to the petition denying each and every cause of action set forth. What further steps will be taken in the matter have not yet been decided upon.

Sues George Allen for the Bill.

Caroline Sidonie Thurn wants ex-Mayor George W. Allen to pay her a dressmaker's bill of $415 which, she claims, was contracted by Mrs. Allen. "Mme. L. Thurn," as she calls herself in business, filed her suit this morning in the Circuit Court, asking for a judgment for the amount stated. She says in her petition that the clothes were purchased by Mrs. Allen and the prices charged are reasonable and fair. Then a statement is given of the dates of purchase, the articles and the prices as follows:

1891.
Oct. 16,	1 Cap and lining	$ 4 00
1892.
March,	1 Ecru coat	38 00
	1 Leghorn hat	10 50
	1 Pique dress	14 50
April 1,	1 Silk dress	35 00
	1 White coat	38 00
	1 Gray coat	28 00
	1 Tan jacket	35 00
	1 Silk dress	35 00
	1 Brown hat	10 50
	1 Brown hat	10 50
	2 Extra bows at $2	4 00
May 7,	1 White silk coat	55 00
	1 Tan jacket	35 00
	2 Nainsook dresses at $25	50 00
	1 Nainsook dress made	12 00
	Total	$415 00

The plaintiff asks for the full amount of the bill, asserting that it is not exorbitant.

A similar suit, brought on March 9 of this year, by Noah G. Felicie for $449.97 for clothes and dress goods was set for trial in courtroom No. 5 at 2 o'clock this afternoon, but the calling of the case was delayed by the case on trial.

Damage Case on Trial.

In Judge Valliant's Court this morning the case of Tobias Duschkin against the Benton & Bellefontaine Railroad was on trial before a jury. Duschkin is asking for $5,000 damages for injuries he claims he suffered in a collision with one of the company's cars. The plaintiff asserts that as he was pulling out of the tracks of the company on Florissant avenue the car was propelled against his wagon, throwing him out and breaking the wagon so that it had to be abandoned.

The O'Brien Case.

The jury in the case of Sarah Appelman vs. Timothy O'Brien, for $1,000 damages, brought in a finding for the defendant this morning, deciding that Mr. O'Brien had not struck and injured Mrs. Appelman as she alleged, and that he was innocent of any wrong-doing.

Court Notes.

The suit of John W. Norton against Charles A. Spaulding for back salary and his share of the profits of the Grand Opera-house was continued in Judge Klein's Court and reset for Jan. 8, 1894.

The inventory of the estate of Babette Kober was filed in the Probate Clerk's office to-day. The estate consists of three lots of ground on Sixteenth street and Clark avenue, upon which no valuation is placed. She left no personal property.

Two Small Boys Arrested.

Cliff Richards and Henry Raboteau, two small boys about 11 years old, were arrested and locked up at the Four Courts last night on complaint of George Sauerbum who stated that his horse and buggy, which he had left standing on Locust, near Eleventh street, while he was transacting some business in the office of a friend near by, had been driven off by the youngsters. The boys were caught driving around the neighborhood having a high old time and were released after they had been a short time in the calaboose. Their mothers called and took the youths home. Both boys reside with their parents on Eleventh street between Olive and Locust streets.

THREATENED WITH FIRE.

Mrs. Rachel Logan Robbed by Prominent Young Men at Pittsburg.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Oct. 19.—Yesterday morning four armed masked men entered the house of Mrs. Rachel Logan, who lives alone in Moon Township, and after torturing the old lady by pouring coal over her clothing and threatening to set fire to it compelled her to give them $515 which she had secreted. Suspicion rested on four young men of this city, and this afternoon they were arrested. On one was found a $100 bill which Mrs. Logan had marked.

The names of the young men, who are all prominent in Pittsburg, are F. G. Laughlin, a telegraph operator; John Shields, private secretary to a wealthy man of this city; Frank Evans, a mind reader, and John Shoemaker, a clerk.

The money was found on Evans, who broke down and confessed. They were all locked up. The old lady is in a precarious condition.

WILL SOON BE ARRESTED.

The Express Officials Think They Have Located the Men Who Stole $22,500.

General Manager A. Antisdel, General Supt. J. L. Trumbull of the American Express Co. and Special Guard Korzendorfer held a star chamber conference of about five hours' duration in parlor 66 of the Southern to-day, the result of which the express officials refused to divulge. When General Manager Antisdel left the parlor to send off a batch of telegrams he was accosted by a POST-DISPATCH reporter and asked what efforts were being made to run down the thief or thieves who got away with the money intrusted to the company, estimated all the way from $50,000 to $250,000. The general manager had a pleasant smile on his face and was willing to talk. Said he:

"We have just come to the conclusion that the money was stolen between New York and St. Louis, and it will be only a matter of hours before we have the guilty parties under arrest. I won't say whom we suspect, as under the circumstances we suspect every-one who had anything to do with the conveyance of the money, but I will say that we are working on a clew which will cause the arrest of parties whom we strongly suspect. Our special agents left St. Louis last night for New York, and you can look for something to drop in a very short time." When asked the amount stolen, Mr. Antisdel stated that from information received this morning he was able to state that the exact amouct missing was $22,500. He claimed that a thorough investigation convinced him that the figures given are absolutely correct.

Special Guard Korzendorfer, who was in charge of the safe after it left St. Louis, has never left the city, but is yet in the money order department of the American Express Co. He stated this afternoon that no suspicion could be attached to him, as he guarded the safe with a Winchester and two revolvers from the time it left St. Louis until it reached New Orleans. "Why if I had wanted to get away with any money, I would not have taken this opportunity," said he, "for I have had thousands of better chances. I have carried over $500,000 in my arms from one company to another after 9 o'clock at night. There would have been my chance if I had saw fit to take advantage of it. You can see, however, that I am not suspected, as I have gone back to work."

Livery Stable Burned.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Oct. 18.—The Leland livery stable, owned by J. W. Crafton & Co., caught fire shortly before noon to-day and burned to the ground. The fire originated in the basement, and as the rear end of the barn was full of hay, the flames were from the first beyond control.

The First Presbyterian Church, the largest church in the city, which adjoins the barns, was on fire several times and was heavily damaged. All the horses were saved except half a dozen. Most of the carriages were burned. The loss is about $20,000; insurance, $3,000.

COMPETITION OF CONVICTS WITH HONEST LABOR IN ILLINOIS DENOUNCED.

Delegate Gustin of Ohio Introduces a Resolution Satirizing the Silver Men—Change in the Constitution Made—To-Day's Proceedings of the Convention.

The convention of the Wholesale Saddlery Association met in its final session at 10 o'clock to-day. Before convening the delegates chatted pleasantly in the hotel rotunda about their drive of yesterday and their night at the Exposition.

The Executive Committee was in session a longer time than usual and President Campbell's gavel did not fall until after the committee filed out of Parlor 22, so it was fully 11 o'clock when business began in the convention proper.

C. S. Osborne of Newark, N. J., presented the association with a handsome gavel for the perpetual use of the association.

The Committee on District Organization reported, asking an extension of time until the afternoon session, which was granted.

The Committee on Penitentiary Labor, P. H. Degnan, Chairman, reported as resolution:

To His Excellency the Governor of Illinois, Gov. Altgeld:

Whereas, A few years ago the State of Illinois passed a constitutional amendment prohibiting convict labor, the people having at the polls declared the same unjust to free labor. Now that most of the contracts have expired and the State has purchased and entered into the manufacture of harness, collars and other goods in competition with free labor and other business interests; and

Whereas, There are at this time many thousands of skilled mechanics out of employment; and,

Whereas, The State of Illinois is now manufacturing these goods and becoming a competitor of free labor and business interests which is in variance with the spirit of our Government;

Therefore, We petition your honor to have the same discontinued at the earliest possible date, and to employ convict labor upon something that will not come in contact with free labor and business interests. Respectfully submitted,

P. H. DEGNAN,
S. R. MCCONNELL,
P. BURNS.

The committee also reported the following resolution:

Whereas, The State of Illinois now is employing convict labor at Joliet, in the manufacture of harness, collars and other saddlery goods, and has become a competitor of all saddlery manufacturers, we request manufacturers of saddlery hardware, leather, etc., to discontinue the sale of these goods to the State of Illinois to be used in the manufacture of saddlery by prison labor at Joliet, to the detriment of saddlery manufacturers and your patrons all over the country. Respectfully submitted,

P. H. DEGNAN, Chairman.
S. R. MCCONNELL.
P. BURNS.

The resolution to the Governor was adopted, and copies ordered sent to the Governor of Illinois after considerable debate.

The boycotting resolution was liberally discussed. Mr. I. S. Gordon of Indianapolis held that to pass the boycott resolution on the heels of the preceding resolution would be in bad taste.

Mr. Jacob Meyer championed the measure and persisted in his argument until, a slight change being effected in the wording of the resolution making the boycott operative only if the Governor of Illinois declines to discontinue the convict manufacture, the resolution was carried.

Mr. Degnan offered a resolution to the effect that where a city contained three or more wholesale houses these be allowed one representative on the Executive Committee.

This was explained as intended to serve as protection in the matter of future ratings.

The resolution was rejected.

CHANGE IN THE CONSTITUTION.

The Executive Committee recommended a change in Art. 3, of the Constitution merely affecting the time and place of annual meeting and providing for empowering the Executive Committee to call special meetings.

This change was unanimously indorsed.

The consideration of place and time for the next meeting was postponed until the afternoon session.

Mr. Gustin, a gentleman from Canton, O., who was present, was granted ten minutes to present a humorous address which will explain itself:

SLAP AT THE SILVERITES.

Not as a matter of discord, but that we may not blunder away at effect and let cause go unmolested, I respectfully crave your attention for a few moments.

This association has evolved into an organization promising much good to the members bound together by its ties. The history of civilization shows that evolution for the better is slowly growing in all lines and as a step to further that growth, I respectfully suggest to this convention that inasmuch as iron is a commodity produced from mining, and that silver and gold are commodities produced in like manner, said production of these commodities being for the direct good of the various interests mining them and an indirect good to the balance of the world and further that the value of a commodity is greatly enhanced by having a fiat monetary value voted it by the nation, therefore, be it resolved, that it is the sense of this convention that pad screws be adopted as a medium of exchange and vested with monetary fiat on a parity with silver and gold. By enacting this resolution into law, it would enhance the value of pad screws to $2 per gross and protect a branch of industry among our own members.

This would be generosity to home production to our profit, instead of the gold and silver production to our expense.

If you would give my firm the exclusive right to coin these pad screws, we could stamp the owl on the face of such pad screw coin and the words: "In God and the Saddlery Fiat We Trust," which would show we believe in God and are not heathen.

If the pad screw reserve needed strengthening, as the gold reserve now seems to need, we could furnish you large quantities on interest bearing bonds by sub-leasing our rights to other saddlery manufacturers.

In this way we could screw down the business world into a panic almost any time by making interest on pad screw reserves eat up our principal in business.

Our honored President has said that the banks are the bulwarks of business. I am led to believe they are of the opposite gender and would term them the "cow works" of trade, for they seem to absorb almost all the milk of business by means of interest teats.

In sober earnestness I offer the following resolution:

Resolved, That the convention demand a national postal savings bank, run by the nation on the lines of dealing direct with the business world.

Mr. Gustin continued his remarks in support of his position for a few moments and was heartily applauded at the conclusion. The convention then adjourned.

NEW YORK, 9 a. m.—The stock market opened quiet, with no feature. London houses are buying a few hundred St. Paul. Wormser bought some Sugar and London sold Atchison. A little covering is going on—covering was the feature of the day. A bull interest attempted to start covering and put orders in on C., B. & Q. at the opening with the intention of making that stock the leader. The move was considered successful and it was estimated at noon that fully 15,000 shares of short stock had been covered. The selling attracted attention and traders were putting out stock with some freedom, when they bid up in Northern Pacific, which changed the sentiment and led to a strong close, stimulated by Washington rumors of an early action on the repeal bill. The loan crowd showed comparatively little change in rates, C., B. & Q., Northern Pacific preferred, Union Pacific, L. & N. and New York Central were from flat to 1-128.

Earnings of the Iowa Central for the second week of October decreased $8,690. Nelson Morris of Chicago says that with cheap corn, low cost of manufacture and advance in price of spirits, the outlook for D. & C. F. is very promising.

LONDON, Oct. 19.—The Bank of England's rate of discount is unchanged at 3 per cent.

MARRIED AT NOON.

The Aglar-Slattery Nuptials at Christ Church Cathedral.

A DEBUTANTE DINNER GIVEN BY THE MISSES O'FALLON.

Several Weddings Outside of the City During the Week in Which St. Louisians Were Interested—Functions Which Are Being Given by the Fashionable World—Movements of Society People.

An important social event took place to-day in the marriage of Miss Elizabeth Slattery to Mr. Francis Beauregard Aglar of Chicago, formerly of St. Louis. The bride is the eldest daughter of Capt. D. P. Slattery of Pine street. The beautiful and imposing ceremonial took place at high noon, at Christ Church Cathedral, where Rev. Dr. Holland of St. George's performed the marriage ceremony. The bridal cortege entered the sacred edifice at the appointed hour, the beautiful strains of Mendelssohn's "Wedding March" announcing their arrival and the ushers, Messrs. Edgar Smith, Chas. Mason, Chas. McKean and George Bittman, leading the procession.

The bride's little sisters, Misses Ruth and Lucie Slattery, who were her bridemaids, followed the ushers, and the maid of honor, Miss Mary Slattery, the second sister of the bride, came next, walking alone.

The bride came last, leaning upon her father's arm, and was met by the groom and his best man, Mr. Thomas Preston Haley, at the altar, according to the well-known English custom.

During the solemn and beautiful nuptial ceremony the organist played softly "The Voice That Breathed O'er Eden," and at the conclusion of the marriage service the bridal party passed out to the strains of Lohengrin's wedding march.

The bride wore a lovely robe of white satin, the skirt made with a long court train, the high-cut bodice covered with crystal gauze, the front of the skirt being draped with a pepplum of white satin, after the fashion of our grandmothers, and a hip trimming of orange blossoms, the bodice being finished with long puffed sleeves of crystal gauze and garniture of orange flowers. A very important item of the bride's costume was a magnificent opal, surrounded by diamonds, set in a golden tiara, which confined her bridal veil of illusion. This opal is an heirloom in the family several centuries. The bride's toilet was completed by a white prayer book and point lace kerchief, which she carried in her hand, and a bunch of sweet Parma violets, which she wore fastened in her corsage. Her maid of honor and little bridemaids were all costumed alike in gowns of white embroidered china silk, the high cut bodice trimmed with ruffle of pure white chiffon, and white satin ribbon, and they carried bunches of Parma violets.

The bridemaids also wore large white hats of French felt, with antique satin crowns, and trimming of white Prince of Wales tips.

The bridal party returned to the residence of the bride, No. 3123 Pine street after the marriage ceremony, where a family breakfast was served for the bridal party, immediate family, and a few intimate friends from a distance who are guests of Capt. Slattery.

Mr. and Mrs. Aglar left to-day for their home in Chicago.

There have been several weddings outside the city this week in which St. Louisans have had more than usual interest. On Tuesday Miss Bertha Drummond, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John N. Drummond, was married to Mr. Edward M. Bowman, Secretary of the Missouri Glass Co. The marriage was celebrated at high noon at the handsome residence of the bride's father at Alton, Ill. A brilliant ceremonial had been planned, but owing to the death three weeks ago of the grandfather of the bride the ceremony was quietly performed in the presence only of the immediate relatives of the bridal pair, with only the bride's sister, Miss Mary Drummond, as maid of honor and Mr. Stephen Gere as best man. The bride wore a very simple, but elegant gown of heavy white satin duchess, combined with silk gauze bengaline, over which the wedding veil of tulle fell like a mist. The only ornament was a beautiful diamond pendant, the gift of the groom, and in her hand she carried bride roses. Miss Mary Drummond wore a beautiful gown of organdie and carried a bunch of roses. Soon after the wedding breakfast the bridal pair left for Old Point Comfort, where they will spend their honeymoon. Although the invitations were limited there was a very large array of superb souvenirs.

On Wednesday morning at 8 o'clock Mrs. Francis Bainbridge Colby of this city was married to Mr. Garrett H. TenBroek, also of this city. The ceremony was performed at the residence of the bride's mother and sister at Cleveland, O., in the presence only of the immediate relatives, including Mrs. Gus Thomas of New York City and Mr. Bainbridge Colby, who joined their mother at Cleveland to be present at the marriage. Mr. and Mrs. TenBroek left immediately for Chicago, where they will spend a week, and be at home Tuesdays to their friends at No. 1103 Jackson place.

On Wednesday at high noon Miss Louise Tirrell Francis was married to Mr. J. Richard of Pittsburg, Pa. The ceremony was celebrated at the residence of the bride's mother in Bunker Hill, Ill., Mr. W. H. Woodward of this city giving the bride away. Quite a little party of St. Louisans attended.

The Misses O'Fallon gave a charming "rosebud tea" on Monday afternoon at their residence on Grand avenue, corner of Delmar, to which only this season's debutantes were invited.

The polo game at Sportsman's Park on Saturday will be a notable social event. The team, selected from the best polo players of the Country Club, are well-known men belonging to the oldest and best known families of St. Louis. As this is the first polo match game to be played in this city, it is expected that great interest will be taken in it, and that a large crowd will be there. Among the ladies holding boxes are: Mrs. C. E. Sterling, Mrs. Hugh McKittrick, Mrs. J. G. Chapman, Mrs. J. F. Shepley and Mrs. Charles Scudder. After the expenses are paid 50 per cent of the gate receipts will be given to the Children's Hospital, which is much in need of funds.

BOOKS WITH "ADS."

The Post-Dispatch's Liberal Offer to Its Want Advertisers.

Commencing to-day the POST-DISPATCH will present a beautifully bound book, worth from 75 cents to $1, to every person inserting an advertisement amounting to 25 cents in the want columns of any issue of this paper. No restrictions are placed on this offer and it is absolutely open to every one. It applies to want advertisements inserted in the columns of either the daily or Sunday issue of the POST-DISPATCH.

The books are beautifully bound in colored cloth covers, stamped in black and gold. The binding, paper and print are of the best quality, and the volumes are first-class in every detail. No exaggeration has been placed on the value of the books, which are worth at least from 75 cents to $1. Copies may be seen at this office, and will be found to more than fulfill all expectations. The accompanying cut is the exact size of each of the books.

A partial list of the books of the series will be found below. New lists will appear each week. Over 200 titles are contained in the list and those not appearing in the catalogue published to-day will be printed from week to week for advertisers to select from. In the series will be found the works of such authors as Sir Walter Scott, Washington Irving, Miss Braddon, Dickens, Charles Reade, Ouida, George Eliot, Thackeray, Dumas and 100 others equally as famous.

No one can afford to neglect to fill their wants and at the same time to accumulate a handsome and valuable library. To secure a book 25 cents worth of advertising must be placed at one time, but it is immaterial whether an "ad." covers that amount at one insertion or whether a smaller "ad." is placed for several insertions. The only requisite is that advertising amounting to 25 cents be placed at the one time. By thus advertising not only are your wants filled, but you secure, without further charge, a handsome copy of a standard book worth from three to four times the amount expended in advertising. Below is the list of the first installment:

4. AIRY FAIRY LILLIAN, by the Duchess.

Cattle—Receipts, 6,432 head. There was only a moderate supply of native on hand this morning mostly cows and feeders. The run was large, about 150 car-loads, buyers held for bid lower prices and it was some time before salesmen would meet their views, but in order to make sales they were finally compelled to make concessions and even at fully 15c decline the movement was slow.

CHARITY CONCERT.

The Police Department to Get Up an Entertainment for the Poor.

At the meeting of the Police Board Tuesday afternoon the members of the board and Chief Harrigan discussed the problem of how to some extent relieve the suffering of the poor during the coming winter. It was pointed out that poverty was one of the great causes of crime and that there would be great distress, if not starvation, this winter, if adequate relief was not extended. The police do not desire to invade any field of charity that is already covered, but there are thousands of poor people who suffer without applying to the Provident, St. Vincent de Paul, or other relief societies, and it is only when neighbors call the attention of the officer on the beat that their misery is known and relief obtained. This relief at present comes through the newspapers, which tell the charitable public about these worthy objects of charity.

The Police Board, after taking everything into consideration, instructed Chief Harrigan to get up a grand concert, to be given in the large hall of the Exposition about the middle of next month. The best local talent will appear, and the tickets will be sold by police officers for the benefit of the poor. It is expected that the affair will be a grand musical and charitable success.

ON 'CHANGE.

Grain.

Wheat—The stronger and better feeling that developed yesterday was much stronger and better this morning. There was heavier and more confident buying and much less for sale and it was but a short time after the opening that a ⅝c advance was established. The decline of ⅛c on disappointing clearances was only temporary and followed by a quick reaction, in which all this loss was regained. The close was firm, with Dec ⅜c and May ½c above yesterday. Traders found this morning firmer cables, smaller receipts—675 cars at Duluth and Minneapolis and a falling off at winter wheat points—and advices of a better cash demand at the seaboard to back up the bull turn in speculative markets yesterday. As that day last year was a holiday and the markets were closed there was nothing to make a comparison with, but traders were not looking for comparisons and most of them were for further improvements in prices and they sailed in and bought freely. The private wire gossip was that the continent was buying in New York and the latter market in Chicago. Everything looked bullish until the clearances were posted and, as from five ports they were only 14,700 pkgs flour and 108,500 bu wheat, domestic markets were unfavorably affected and fell back. The late cables came too strong not to have effect, as they presented a decided contrast to the weakness most of them have lately shown. Liverpool closed with spots unchanged, but futures ⅛@¼d higher, Antwerp was quoted ⅛c better, Berlin up ¾@1c and Paris ⅛@1c. All domestic markets advanced and held up right well to the close.

FUTURES—Dec opened at 61⅝@¼c, advanced almost steadily to 62¼c, eased off slowly and irregularly to 61¼c, rallied to 62⅛c, fell back to 62c and subsequently fluctuated between 62c and 62⅛c, closing at 62c bid. May opened at 69⅞c and sold up to 70c, back to 69⅞c to 70c again, closing at 69⅞c. Oct offered at 59⅞c, bid 59½c; Nov at 60⅛c, bid 60⅛c.

SPOT GRADES—Higher for all save No 4 winter, but somewhat slower sale, as on call most milling buyers were holding off. No 2 red sold ⅜c higher, regular at 59½c. No 3 red ⅛c better this side at 56⅝c, and that the best bid for E side. No 4 winter steady this side at 54c. For No 2 hard winter 57½c bid.

Sales: No 2 red—11,021 bu and 18 cars regular at 59½c. No 3 red—3 cars in M, 2 in St L, 6 in C "B" and 4 regular at 56⅝c. No 4 winter—12 cars this side at 54c.

SAMPLES—Received 8,999 sks and 67 cars local, 16 cars through. The market was rather tame and sales were slow throughout the session at prices showing little change from yesterday. Sales—Red winter, 20 sks rejected at 48c, 140 at 50c, 25 at 52c, 100 at 54c, 271 No 4 at 55c del, 172 at 55½c, 1,634 No 3 at 56⅝c, 350 at 57c, 335 prime at 57⅝c, 540 choice at 58c, 220 fancy at 59c. In special bin—1 car rejected at 49c, 2 cars at 50c, 1 car at 52c, 2 cars choice rejected at 53½c, 4 cars No 4 at 55c, 4 cars at 55½c. East trk—2 cars rejected at 50c and 51c, 2 cars No 3 at 58c, 3 at 60c. This side trk—1 car rejected at 5 c, 2 cars No 3 at 57½c.

Corn—This market continued its upward move in price, but was just as dull and uninteresting as it could be. Except the advance in wheat and stronger markets elsewhere, there was nothing particularly bullish. Cables were firm and the four ports cleared 110,000 bu. The latest Liverpool reported ⅛d advance in spot and ¾@1d in futures, and, with the second rally in wheat, closed firm at ⅛c above yesterday.

FUTURES—The only future trading was in Dec, which sold early at 34⅞c and late at 35c. Best bids were 36⅛c for Oct, 34⅞c for Nov, 34⅞c for year and 38⅜c for May, but no sellers at these rates. For May No 2 white 40c bid.

SPOT GRADES—Higher and offerings inadequate for the demand. Most of the stock on sale was No 2, which was taken by a short at 38⅛c regular and 37⅛c paid East side, a party who had to have a car paying as high as 37⅞c this side. No 2 white this side sold at 38½c. For No 3 East side 36½c bid, but neither that grade nor No 3 white offered.

Sales: No 2—3 cars regular at 36⅛c, 1 East side at 37⅛c, 1 this side at 37⅞c. No 2 white—1 car in M at 38½c.

SAMPLES—Larger offerings, but sold readily to local millers at good prices. Sales—track this side—2 cars colony white at 38½c, 1 car white car at 46½c. East track—1 car white at 38½c. Sks returned—408 sks, at Charles, at 39c, 8kd lots on orders, 43@45c.

Oats—Hardly any speculation but market firm and higher prices obtainable. The only sale was for May at 31⅛c. Bids of 27c for Oct, 27¼c for Nov, 27⅞c for Dec.

SPOT GRADES—Higher. No 2 salable regular at 27c and East Side at 27¼c; No 3 regular at 26½c.

Sales: No 2—1 car in M at 27c.

SAMPLES—Received, 26 cars. On selections the market was ¼@½c higher. At the advance buyers were holding off and taking only what they were compelled to have for immediate use. The average run of offerings held above yesterday's top range for the same grade, but not salable at over yesterday's prices and then in limited quantities. Sales were as follows:

By sample in special bin—1 car No 2 white at 30c, 1 do at 29½c, 1 fancy No 2 at 29c, 2 No 3 white at 28½c, 2 do at 28c, 1 do at 27½c, 1 do at 27¼c, 1 No 3 color and 2 No 4 white at 27c, 1 No 4 white at 26¾c, 2 No 3 at 26c, 1 No 4 at 25½c, 2 musty do at 24c.

By sample on trk—2 cars No 3 white at 28½c. Skd lots on orders, 31@32c.

Rye—A better price was paid for No 2 after call, 2 cars selling regular at 42c. No 3 was salable at 39c.

Barley—Very little done excepting deliveries on contract. A car Iowa sold at 50c.

Hay.

Received, 375 tons; shipped, 109 tons. There was little life to the demand and trading was light. The best grades of all kinds had the call and for the extreme low grades there was some selling for packing purposes. Medium grades were dull. Prices were unchanged.

Sales this side—Mixed—1½ cars at $7, 2 at $7.50, 1 at $8, 1 at $9, 1 at $9.50, 2 at $9.75, 2 slightly at $10. Timothy—3 cars strictly prime at $10.50, 2 about choice at $10.75, 2 choice at $11, 1 strictly do at $11.75, 1 fancy at $12, extra do large bales at $13.50. Prairie—4 cars at $7, 2 at $7.50, 2 at $8, 1 free of storage at $8.50. East Side—1 car timothy at $11.

Flour and Feed.

Flour—The market remains without life, as trade was mainly of a jobbing character. Prices ruling barely steady, and ruling rather in favor of buyers.

ON THE STREET.

[The Post-Dispatch quotations are for lots in first hands unless otherwise quoted. Orders are filled with choice goods and are higher.

Fruits.

Apples—The firmness noted yesterday on fancy offerings resulted in an advance of about 25c per bbl on to-day's sales. The advance was more readily obtained on Canadian, as these were the best. The ordinary run of fruit was in fair supply and on these the market was steady, but no higher. We quote: Fancy, $3@3.50, with an occasional extra fancy lot of Canadian selling a shade higher; choice, $2.75@3; fair, $2@2.50; poor, $1.25@1.50 per bbl.

Peaches—The season is about over and the little offered outside of California was poor and found slow sale. We quote: Ohio, 10@25c per peck basket, and Michigan, 25@50c per ⅓-bu basket.

Pears—There was considerable Eastern offering, but they were mainly out of order and had to be repacked in order to realize anything like fair prices. For good offerings there was a fair demand. We quote: Choice Eastern in bbls at $3@5; in kegs, $1.50@1.75; near-by Keefers, 40@50c per ⅓-bu box.

Cranberries—New Cape Cod are selling slowly at $4.50@5 ℔ bbl.

Dried Fruit—The market ruled about steady, yet the demand did not show the urgency as for some time past. The quietness is attributable largely to warmer weather.

Commercial Notes.

Wheat is gathering strength and friends.

A good upturn in prices would be good for everybody.

New Orleans cleared yesterday for Havre 50,448 bu wheat.

"As all the outsiders, including the country, are now frozen out, wheat will probably advance," remarked a disgruntled bull.

Cincinnati Price Current: New crop of wheat is in improved condition and getting a good start. Acreage is less reduced than apprehended. Harvested crop offerings are a little more full, but hardly liberal. Corn movement is not enlarging. New crop is being actively gathered. The yield is up to calculations.

Very little change has taken place in general weather conditions since yesterday. The pressure still remains high and fair, cool weather prevails. No rain is reported, except very light showers at Marquette, Bismarck and Des Moines. Forecast: Fair to-day and Friday; cooler.

Advices from Russia are that the crops are harvested, and that the yield is below anticipations. Wheat is called a full average crop, rye barely an average, barley a very good crop, and oats a large outturn but poor in quality.

The Consular reports of the approximate shipments of grain from the Argentine from Jan 1 to June 30 make a total of 690,000 tons of wheat, against 360,000 tons last year; corn, 10,000 tons against 120,000 tons.

Final estimates on the yield of the German crop places it at 11.25 quintals per hectare, which would give a total crop of 234,000,000 bu, against 250,400,000 bu last year. This means that Germany will have to import more rye or find substitutes. Stocks of rye at Berlin, Danzig and Stettin on the 1st inst. were 2,192,000 bu, against only 656,000 bu last year. The Russian shipments continue very moderate in extent, and from Roumania also there is very little shipping.—[Beerbohm.

Speaking of the English wheat crop, Beerbohm says: "If the yield per acre finally proves to be only 25 bu, this would mean a crop of 6,100,000 qrs, and would yield little more than 5,000,000 qrs for consumption. We are inclined to think that the real result will come out between 25 and 27 bu. It is, however, a fact that on every side the scarcity of new English wheat is complained of, and the circumstance that the farmers' sales during Sept. are little less than last year is to be accounted for by the fact that a considerable proportion of old wheat (which is by no means of such good quality as the new) has been sold during this month. In France a good rainfall has helped farmers in their wheat-sowing operations, and in Austria-Hungary likewise a timely rainfall has done much to improve the seed-bed. The Austrian Minister of Agriculture now states that the wheat, rye and barley crops have yielded a full average, while oats are an ordinary average."

Wall Street.

NEW YORK, Oct. 19.—The stock market opened weak and ⅛@⅝ lower, Sugar and Chicago Gas leading in the decline. There was, however, an immediate rally, in which the loss at the opening was pretty nearly recovered and the market became steady on a very limited volume of business. The heavy opening was mainly in sympathy with the weakness of American securities in the London market.

The Clearing-house Committee of the Associated Banks have leased vaults in the Mercantile Safe Deposit Co., in which will be stored the gold received on balances daily. Against this gold will be issued Clearing-house gold certificates for circulation among the banks, and which will be included in calculating the reserves in the weekly bank statement.

The market became strong about 10:15 o'clock and prices improved ⅛@⅝ per cent, the latter in Sugar. Shortly before 11 o'clock a fractional reaction took place, but the market has again become firm. Consolidated Gas advanced 2¾ per cent to 133¼ and Cotton Oil preferred 1¼ to 71¼.

Noon—Money on call easy at 2 per cent. Prime mercantile paper 6@8 per cent. Sterling exchange weak and dull, with actual business in bankers' bill at 484¼@484½ for demand, and 482¼@482½ for sixty days; posted rates, 483½@485½. Commercial bills, 481¼@481½. Silver certificates, 73¼. Bar silver, 73. Mexican dollars, 58½. Railroad bonds strong. The stock market has not been very active so far to-day and the speculation has not been settled in tone, reactions and recoveries following each other in quick succession. The undertone, however, has been rather weak and at noon prices had declined compared with yesterday's closing figures, ⅛@⅝ per cent. in the active list. Consolidated Gas has advanced 2¾ per cent. to 133¼, and American Cotton Oil preferred 1¼ to 71¼. The speculation is very tame and without notable feature. It is at this hour extremely sluggish and tending toward weakness, owing mainly to lack of buyers rather than to any selling movement. The bond market is strong, in marked contrast to the share speculation.

SKILLFUL COUNTERFEITERS.

Some Very Fine Work Done by Makers of Bogus Money.

During the November term of the United States District Court comparatively few criminal cases will be tried. The Grand-jury found but twenty-five indictments, most of them for comparatively slight offenses. The only crime that has apparently been on the increase is that of counterfeiting. Some of the best executed silver counterfeits ever made were shown to the Grand-jury and the detectives believe that they either have under bond or are on the trail of some of the most skillful counterfeiters in the country. Several alloys have been captured from which a dollar can be made that can be disguished from a genuine only by an expert. The officers have, however, been very successful in obtaining evidence, and several convictions are confidently expected.

FEIGNS EPILEPSY.

Strange Case of Joseph Meyers, Who Was Before Judge Morris To-Day.

A rather interesting case was tried before Judge Morris this morning. Joseph Meyers was the defendant. Yesterday afternoon, while there was a large crowd in the neighborhood of Fourth street and Washington avenue, Meyers fell in what appeared to be an epileptic fit. Officer Bennett of the squad picked him up, and had him conveyed to the City Dispenary, accompanying him in the patrol wagon. Arriving at the Dispensary a very strong solution of ammonia was placed to Meyer's nostrils, and at once he jumped to his feet and grasped the officer. A fierce struggle ensued, during which Officer Bennett's uniform, pants and coat were badly torn and almost ruined. From Meyer's actions, it was thought he was feigning and examination revealed the fact that he had not had a fit nor was he subject to them, although it is said he has been doing this acrobatic performance on the down-town thoroughfares on occasions when the streets are crowded. These facts were brought out before Judge Morris. Meyers was charged with being a mendicant. As it was not proven that he had ever profited by his epileptic penchant he was discharged with a warning.

A Nice, Polite Thief.

Amadee Cole had an amusing experience last night. He was returning from Chicago and, comfortably seated in a Pullman, was perusing an evening paper, when he felt a tug at his watch chain. Throwing down his hands he caught the end of his watch chain, dangling loose from his watch, and looking up quickly saw a very nice-looking man in suspicious proximity to his person. Mr. Cole saw at once that some sharp had clipped his chain with a pair of nippers and was after his watch, which, though of the vintage of '44, is valued very highly by its wearer. The nice-looking man saw Mr. Cole was on to him, but he never lost his nerve for a moment.

"Excuse me," he blandly remarked.

"Why, certainly," replied Mr. Cole; "I would not interfere for a moment with the course of trade, and I am really sorry I interfered with your business as I did."

The nice-looking man smiled once more, murmured "You are very kind, I'm sure. Pray excuse me," and passed on.

Mr. Cole retains his watch and a pleasing memory of a very polite Chicago thief.
